Closing Session
WE MAY BE SOCIALLY DISTANT, BUT WE CAN STILL BE SOCIAL.

Use #ACPA21 to check out what everyone’s talking about and to be reminded of certain sessions & events! The Convention Team will be monitoring the social community and will respond to questions and concerns as they come through!

Be sure to follow @ACPA on Twitter to receive important updates and messages as they’re shared!
Our world drastically changed soon after the ACPA20 Annual Convention in Nashville, TN last year. We experienced a historic pandemic that continues to ravage communities around the world, we witnessed unforgettable social uprisings after the brutal deaths of George Floyd and Breonna Taylor (amongst too many others), we continue to live through ongoing climate change catastrophes, we’ve seen financial impacts on the personal, collegiate, and societal levels, and the list goes on and on.

Through it all, ACPA members and leaders remained steadfast that our work is necessary. We needed a Convention that helped us recover from our worlds, find community, and fill our intellectual and emotional selves. We needed respite, safe harbor, and connection. We needed each other.

When the Convention Steering Team decided to focus on the ACPA21 Annual Convention as something that would be real, refreshing, revitalizing (and, soon thereafter, reimagined), we had no idea how important those words would be. From our initial planning at the Long Beach location through the move to a virtual experience, these words, along with the Strategic Imperative for Racial Justice and Decolonization, guided and grounded us in the importance of every decision. Along with the dedication of the Convention Planning Team members, we can truthfully say that we did what we could to live up to those challenges.

And while we’re not meeting in the traditional sense, we have an opportunity to find connection virtually in ways that increase our accessibility and break apart the hectic nature of Convention. Based on prior Convention feedback, we decided to build in more time so that learning could happen as you needed it.

- Mondays and Tuesdays will focus on learning, research, and best practices in our field.
- Wednesdays will focus on you, your personal and professional development, and on our community.
- Thursdays and Fridays will be about connecting with ACPA entity/involvement groups and the many offerings they will provide.

The aim is not to fill up your days and weeks. Instead, we hope you will find the sessions that best speak to you, create your own unique pathway through the Convention schedule, and also take care of yourself through the process.

If this is your first time at an ACPA Annual Convention, we welcome you. Get to know ACPA and the many ways it can support you. Get involved through ACPA’s chapters, coalitions and networks, commissions, and communities of practice. And get connected with other members. And for those who have attended ACPA Conventions in the past, we welcome you back and thank you. All of us are experiencing the virtual ACPA environment together and we hope it will be a memorable one.

You had a choice of where to spend your time and we are thrilled you chose the ACPA21 Annual Convention. Thank you for choosing the ACPA community.

With gratitude,

Bernie Liang // he, him, his
ACPA21 Convention Chair

Chris Moody // he, him, his
ACPA Executive Director

Vernon Wall // he, him, his
2020-2021 ACPA President
Dear Student Affairs Leader,

It is an honor to welcome you to the first-ever virtual ACPA Annual Convention on behalf of the ACPA Foundation Board of Trustees! I have attended every ACPA Convention since I was a first-year graduate student and proudly call ACPA my professional home. Our collective work in support of students is about choices, and you have made an excellent choice to be in community with ACPA. I will deeply miss being together in person, but know that the richness of the ACPA experience is not limited by any physical space.

The ACPA Foundation’s role is to provide philanthropic support for the research, scholarship and professional development that boldly transforms higher education through the work of ACPA. Hopefully you have contributed to fundraising efforts through the Diamond Honoree program or through various campaigns that support key ACPA priorities like:

- The Next Generation Program
- The Marylu K. McEwen Dissertation of the Year Award
- ACPA Research and Scholarship grants
- The Strategic Imperative for Racial Justice and Decolonization

We are concluding our three-year Invest and Transform campaign for philanthropic support of ACPA. We set an ambitious $500,000 goal three years ago and I am pleased to share that when we close the campaign at the conclusion of the virtual convention, our final total will be significantly more than our goal! When the final amount is announced, I know you will be proud to be an ACPA member as the total raised is a strong endorsement of ACPA’s work in boldly transforming higher education. This investment would not be possible without YOUR donations.

The success of our campaign has come from over 2,500 donors – all of whom are committed to ACPA. Our efforts to fund raise do not end because the campaign will close. Please continue giving at foundation.myacpa.org to sustain the leadership ACPA provides higher education. As always, my sincere thanks to all who donate to the ACPA Foundation.

In community,

Keith B. Humphrey, Ph.D. // he, him, his
President, ACPA Foundation
Vice President for Student Affairs, Cal Poly
WHAT IS A LAND ACKNOWLEDGMENT?
A Land Acknowledgment is a formal statement that recognizes and respects Indigenous Peoples as traditional stewards of the land and the enduring relationship that exists between Indigenous Peoples and their traditional territories.

WHY DO WE RECOGNIZE THE LAND?
To recognize the land is an expression of gratitude and appreciation to those whose territory you reside on, and a way of honoring the Indigenous people who have been living and working on the land from time immemorial. It is important to understand the long-standing history that has brought you to reside on the land, and to seek to understand your place within that history.

Land acknowledgments do not exist in a past tense, or historical context. Colonialism is a current ongoing process, and we need to build our mindfulness of our present participation. It is also worth noting that acknowledging the land is Indigenous protocol.

ACPA21 LONG BEACH LAND ACKNOWLEDGMENT
Related to our mission of supporting and fostering learning through the generation and sharing of knowledge, ACPA would like to acknowledge that Long Beach, CA is part of the traditional homelands occupied by the Gabrieleno/Tongva, the Toongvetam, and the Acjachamen/Juaneno peoples.

We acknowledge the painful history of genocide and forced removal from this territory, and we honor and respect the many diverse Indigenous peoples still connected to this land on which we gather.

ELDER IN RESIDENCE: JULIA BOGANY
Julia Bogany is a member of the Tongva tribe, is on their Tribal Council, and is their Cultural Consultant. She has worked for over thirty years for the American Indian community, providing cultural, FASD, ICWA training and workshops in Sacramento for the California Rural Indian Health Board Woman’s conferences. Ms. Bogany helped to reawaken and revive the Tongva language, by assembling a Tongva dictionary, and teaching Tongva language and cultural classes including the mathematics of basket weaving. She is President of Residential Motivators, her own non-profit consulting firm and President of Kuruvanga Springs, as well as a Representative for California tribes on Route 66, a member of California Native American College (CNAC) board, and Elder in Residence at the Claremont Colleges where she teaches native culture, history and women’s issues.

In September 2010 Ms. Bogany received the Heritage Award from the Aquarium of the Pacific at their sixth annual Native American festival, Moompetam. Ms. Bogany wants to change the future for her tribe, children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren; this is her way of doing it. She cares for her great grandchildren and teaches them arts, crafts, language, and culture. All the work she’s done for the past twenty years is for their future and for the future of her Tongva tribe.

STUDENT AFFAIRS ASSESSMENT INSTITUTE

8, 15 & 22 JUNE 2021

DELIVERED VIRTUALLY
ACPA COLLEGE STUDENT EDUCATORS INTERNATIONAL, headquartered in Washington, D.C. at the National Center for Higher Education, is a leading comprehensive student affairs association that advances student affairs and engages students for a lifetime of learning and discovery.

ACPA, founded in 1924 by May L. Cheney, has over 6,000 members representing 1,200 institutions from across the U.S. and around the world. ACPA members include graduate and undergraduate students enrolled in student affairs/higher education administration programs, faculty, and student affairs educators, from entry level to senior student affairs officers, and organizations and companies that are engaged in the campus marketplace.

MISSION
ACPA transforms higher education by creating and sharing influential scholarship, shaping critically reflective practice, and advocating for equitable and inclusive learning environments.

VISION
ACPA leads the student affairs profession and the higher education community in providing outreach, advocacy, research, and professional development to foster college student learning.

CORE VALUES
- Education and development of the total student.
- Diversity, multicultural competence and human dignity.
- Inclusiveness in and access to association-wide involvement and decision-making.
- Free and open exchange of ideas in a context of mutual respect.
- Advancement and sharing of knowledge relevant to college students and their learning, and the effectiveness of student affairs and student services professionals and their institutions.
- Continuous professional development and personal growth of student affairs and student services professionals that includes the development of effective administrative leadership and management skills.
- Outreach and advocacy on issues of concern to students, student affairs and services professionals and the higher and tertiary education community, including affirmative action and other policy issues.

ACPA AS AN INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION
ACPA-College Student Educators International, in its commitment to the advancement of the student affairs profession, recognizes the international dimensions of its work and the contributions of student affairs/student services practitioners and scholars throughout the world. While historically rooted in the evolution of the American higher education system, the Association seeks now to extend its efforts and services on behalf of and in collaboration with international colleagues to support the learning and educational experience of postsecondary/tertiary students wherever they are. Thus, ACPA is committed to a threefold strategy that 1) furthers international relationships among student affairs/student services practitioners and scholars, 2) advances a common understanding of our work, and 3) supports the preparation and continuing development of colleagues who identify with this field.
INCLUSION
ACPA – College Student Educators International actively promotes and recognizes principles of fairness, equity, and social justice in relation to, and across, intersections of race, age, color, disability, faith, religion, ancestry, national origin, citizenship, sex, sexual orientation, social class, economic class, ethnicity, gender identity/expression, and all other identities represented among our diverse membership. By appreciating the importance of inclusion, we acknowledge that the collective and individual talents, skills, and perspectives of members, constituent groups, and partners foster a culture of belonging, collaborative practice, innovation, and mutual respect. ACPA seeks to empower and engage professionals, scholars, and partners in actions that productively contribute to accomplishing the goals of our association.

If you have information about any bias situation or event believed to have a negative impact on ACPA members, you can report this through the Equity and Inclusion Notification Form. If you have an issue, comment, or complaint not related to bias, please do not use this form; instead, please contact info@acpa.nche.edu or call (202) 780-9243.

ETHICS
ACPA-College Student Educators International is an association whose members are dedicated to enhancing the worth, dignity, potential, and uniqueness of each individual within post-secondary educational institutions and, thus, to the service of society. ACPA members are committed to contributing to the comprehensive education of students, protecting human rights, advancing knowledge of student growth and development, and promoting the effectiveness of institutional programs, services, and organizational units. As a means of supporting these commitments, members of ACPA subscribe to the stated principles and standards of ethical conduct. Acceptance of membership in ACPA signifies that the member understands the provisions of this statement.

GET INVOLVED
There are many different ways to get involved within ACPA. Visit with our Coalitions & Networks, Commissions, Communities of Practice, and Chapters at CelebrACPA, attend an open meeting or social sponsored by one of these entity groups, or consider the Ambassador Program - a leadership opportunity designed specifically for graduate students and new professionals.

Commissions represent the job/functional areas or professional specializations in which ACPA members are employed or have an interest.

Coalitions & Networks represent and act as advocates for the social identities of the ACPA membership; Coalitions represent who we are.

Communities of Practice represent and focus on the unique needs of professionals at various points within their career.

Chapters & International Divisions provide professional development for those within a particular geographic location.
ACPA VIRTUAL PLATFORM: eSHOW
ACPA is excited to utilize a virtual Convention platform that drives engagement and encourages interactive experience. As our in-person event management vendor, eShow has worked with ACPA on past Conventions, understands our Association mission and values and helps us deliver a high-quality learning experience.

LOGGING INTO THE PLATFORM
ACPA21 registrants can login to the virtual platform beginning on 1 March, 2021. You will receive an e-mail with a direct link to the login page and a reminder of your username and password. Once this email is received, we encourage you to log into the platform and review each menu option for a better understanding of how to maximize the virtual experience.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION RECORDINGS
ACPA21 registrants will have access to all sessions for 30-days post Convention (17 April 2021), so if something comes up, your day shifts, or you just can’t seem to find the energy, we understand and hope you will digest the content at a later date! Recordings are only accessible through the virtual platform and cannot be downloaded.

VIRTUAL PLATFORM Q&A
I joined an educational session but the content isn’t a good fit, can I join another?
During Educational Session Blocks, registrants have the ability to leave a session and join another in live time (just like an in-person experience). If you missed a session that you were excited about or want to restart a session you joined late, you can review the recording the day after it airs.

I want to ask the presenters a question about their session, how can I do that?
We encourage participants to use the chat room provided on the right side of the screen during the educational session. There will be two options provided-Chat and Q&A and we ask attendees to use the appropriate section to post their comment or question. We’ve asked presenters to be available within the chat to answer questions or collect feedback on their session. Additionally, you can use the Attendee Lounge to start a discussion around a topic of interest. More information on the Attendee Lounge can be found on page 13.

Will presenters provide handouts or copies of their presentations this year?
We’ve asked presenters to upload slides and supporting documents so they can be accessed by attendees. During the session, there will be a tab labeled “Handouts” that can be downloaded or added to your eBag for later review.

Can I use my microphone or webcam during educational sessions?
The ACPA21 Virtual platform is best suited for chat only correspondence during educational sessions. The use of webcams and microphones will be permitted during open Entity meetings or events only.
eSHOW PLATFORM: MAIN MENU TABS

Lobby
The lobby is the main landing page of the virtual platform. Here you will find a welcome message from ACPA leaders and quick access to the Marketplace, Auditorium and Lounge. Each image in the Lobby is clickable and will send you to internal platform links or external websites.

Marketplace
The ACPA21 Virtual Marketplace offers registrants the ability to visit individual exhibitor booths by clicking on the “Marketplace” tab and selecting the virtual booth you’d like to view. Here you can request to chat with the exhibitor offline, view direct points of contact, or add the exhibitor to your “eBag” to come back to later. Additionally, exhibitors may offer free products and documents for you to download on-demand!
The Directory tab under the Marketplace menu item allows you to do a direct search of exhibitors.

Posters
The Posters tab will directly take you to a display of the selected ACPA21 Research Posters. Review poster abstracts, download the Poster in PDF format, or add a poster to your eBag for later. Use the search bar at the top of the page to search for keywords that interest you.
Auditorium
The ACPA21 Auditorium is the place to be! Opening, Closing and Keynote presentations will take place within the Auditorium and will list all upcoming educational sessions, meetings and events.

The Auditorium is where you’ll go to build your Convention schedule or join a session in the moment. You can add items to your agenda by clicking “Add to My Agenda” under the session you’re interested in attending. You can review your Agenda by hovering over your name in the top right corner and clicking “My Agenda”. Once a session opens (15 minutes prior to the start time), you can visit the Auditorium to be directed to the session room.

Lounge
The Attendee Lounge is the easiest place to connect with other attendees! Join or start a discussion group about anything relevant to student affairs and higher education. Interested in chatting with another attendee privately? You can also search for attendees and start a private chat in the Attendee Lounge. This is also the location where you’ll make SmartMatch appointments with our sponsors and exhibitors.
VIRTUAL CONVENTION PLATFORM (eShow)

eBag
Fill your Convention eBag! Throughout this virtual experience, you can add products, documents, and “hand-outs” to our eBag for later review and download. The eBag is a space for you to collect helpful information to continue the learning after Convention ends.

Help Desk
For questions about experiencing all that #ACPA21 has to offer, visit the virtual Help Desk in the Convention Platform. An ACPA staff member will be happy to assist you with session questions, platform technology, membership, or anything else!

Your Name
When logged into the platform, you should see your first name populated in the top right corner. Hovering over your name provides you with the option to view your profile, your agenda, and to logout of the platform.

Your digital Convention badge can be found under the My Profile submenu item. Edit your photo and name however you’d like with the understanding that Convention attendees can view your badge. To add your Twitter handle, place it in the Credentials section of the name badge.

Click the My Agenda submenu item to quickly review the sessions, meetings and event you have added to your Convention agenda from within the Auditorium.
VIRTUAL CONVENTION PLATFORM (eShow)

PLATFORM COMPATIBILITY
It is recommended that you test your computer prior to your first engagement with the eShow virtual platform to ensure your computer is compatible with the Convention software. A few tips to get you started:

• Disconnect from a VPN and/or serious level firewalls. If you were on a VPN before entering, you will most likely have to restart your computer before turning off the VPN takes effect.
• Make sure your Operating System (OS) is Windows 10 or Mac iOS 10 (Big Sur) 10.15 (Catalina) or 10.14 (Mojave). Any other operating system may cause you to have audio/video issues.
• If you used Zoom/GTM/Ring Central/Skype or a similar app to enter into eShow, you may need to restart your computer to clear the settings to use your camera.
• The preferred browser for eShow is Google Chrome (latest version). Other acceptable browsers include Firefox, Safari, and Edge (latest version of each). Internet Explorer is not usable in any circumstance.
• The minimum internet speed if 20 MBPS Download/ 20 MBPS Upload. Slower speeds may have audio, video, presenting, and/or stable connection issues.
• If you are using a school or work laptop/computer, working from a non-residential setting, or don’t have administrator level access to your computer, you may need to contact your Administrator/IT Department to enable or disable certain security settings to ensure the proper connection. Inform them that you are going to use a webcam and microphone from a browser-based platform (Note: Previously used APP-based platforms like Zoom, Microsoft Meet, Ring Center, are not the same a browser based platforms).
ACCESSIBILITY INFORMATION
ACPA is committed to offering an accessible learning and socializing environment for our attendees. Please visit this link to access the ACPA21 Accessibility Guide.

While there may be additional ways in which we can make events accessible for individuals, here are preliminary steps we’ve taken to expand the accessibility of the convention. We will work with each attendee on a case-by-case basis to ensure we provide resources for an accessible convention:

- The virtual convention platform is compatible with screen reader software. All screen reader software should be set-up on the user’s computer prior to logging into the event.
- General sessions and educational sessions will be captioned.
- Entity leaders were also provided information on how to make meetings and events accessible.

If you have difficulty accessing any portions of Convention or have suggestions on how we can make ACPA21 more accessible, visit the Virtual Help Desk in the eShow platform.

EQUITY AND INCLUSION NOTIFICATION FORM
The Equity and Inclusion Notification Form is used to raise awareness about any bias situation or event believed to have a negative impact on ACPA members, particularly across marginalized social identity group membership. If you have information about any bias situation or event believed to have a negative impact on ACPA members, you can report this through the Equity and Inclusion Notification Form. If you have an issue, comment, or complaint not related to bias, please do not use this form; instead, please contact info@acpa.nche.edu or call (202) 780-9243.

STAYING HEALTHY WHILE VIRTUAL
ACPA knows that many members of our community have spent the past year living in a virtual world. We recognize that excess screen time can cause fatigue, overall low energy and contribute to burnout. We’ve developed a schedule that limits the need to be logged on for days at a time and instead, prioritizes your personal and professional health and wellbeing.

On the heavier content days, we’ve scheduled in lots of break time for you to grab a healthy meal, check-in with a student or do whatever helps you continue through the day with focus and energy!
ADVISING AND SUPPORTING (A/S)
Addresses the knowledge, skills, and dispositions related to providing advising and support to individuals and groups through direction, feedback, critique, referral, and guidance. Through developing advising and supporting strategies that take into account self-knowledge and the needs of others, we play critical roles in advancing the holistic wellness of ourselves, our students, and our colleagues.

ASSESSMENT, EVALUATION, AND RESEARCH (AER)
Focuses on the ability to design, conduct, critique, and use various AER methodologies and the results obtained from them, to utilize AER processes and their results to inform practice, and to shape the political and ethical climate surrounding AER processes and uses in higher education.

LAW, POLICY, AND GOVERNANCE (LPG)
Includes the knowledge, skills, and dispositions relating to policy development processes used in various contexts, the application of legal constructs, compliance/policy issues, and the understanding of governance structures and their impact on one’s practice.

LEADERSHIP (LEAD)
Addresses the knowledge, skills, and dispositions required of a leader, with or without positional authority. Leadership involves both the individual role of a leader and the leadership process of individuals working together to envision, plan, and affect change in organizations and respond to broad-based constituencies and issues. This can include working with students, student affairs colleagues, faculty, and community members.

ORGANIZATIONAL AND HUMAN RESOURCES (OHR)
Includes knowledge, skills, and dispositions used in the management of institutional human capital, financial, and physical resources. This competency area recognizes that student affairs professionals bring personal strengths and grow as managers through challenging themselves to build new skills in the selection, supervision, motivation, and evaluation of staff; resolution of conflict; management of the politics of organizational discourse; and the effective application of strategies and techniques associated with financial resources, facilities management, fundraising, technology, crisis management, risk management and sustainable resources.

PERSONAL AND ETHICAL FOUNDATIONS (PEF)
Involves the knowledge, skills, and dispositions to develop and maintain integrity in one’s life and work; this includes thoughtful development, critique, and adherence to a holistic and comprehensive standard of ethics and commitment to one’s own wellness and growth. Personal and ethical foundations are aligned because integrity has an internal locus informed by a combination of external ethical guidelines, an internal voice of care, and our own lived experiences. Our personal and ethical foundations grow through a process of curiosity, rejection, and self-authorship.
SOCIAL JUSTICE AND INCLUSION (SJI)
While there are many conceptions of social justice and inclusion in various contexts, for the purposes of this competency area, it is defined here as both a process and a goal which includes the knowledge, skills, and dispositions needed to create learning environments that foster equitable participation of all groups while seeking to address and acknowledge issues of oppression, privilege, and power. This competency involves student affairs educators who have a sense of their own agency and social responsibility that includes others, their community, and the larger global context. Student affairs educators may incorporate social justice and inclusion competencies into their practice through seeking to meet the needs of all groups, equitably distributing resources, raising social consciousness, and repairing past and current harms on campus communities.

STUDENT LEARNING AND DEVELOPMENT (SLD)
Addresses the concepts and principles of student development and learning theory. This includes the ability to apply theory to improve and inform student affairs practice.

TECHNOLOGY (TECH)
Focuses on the use of digital tools, resources, and technologies for the advancement of student learning, development, and success as well as the improved performance of student affairs professionals. Included within this area are knowledge, skills, and dispositions that lead to the generation of digital literacy and digital citizenship within communities of students, student affairs professionals, faculty members, and colleges and universities as a whole.

VALUES, PHILOSOPHY, AND HISTORY (VPH)
Involves knowledge, skills, and dispositions that connect the history, philosophy, and values of the student affairs profession to one’s current professional practice. This competency area embodies the foundations of the profession from which current and future research, scholarship, and practice will change and grow. The commitment to demonstrating this competency area ensures that our present and future practices are informed by an understanding of the profession’s history, philosophy, and values.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION TYPES

Career Wellness Sessions
Presentation or panel sessions on a specific topic. This year, Career Wellness programs will take place during two independent session blocks for a more engaging experience. Career Wellness #1 can be found on page 56 and Career Wellness #2 can be found on page 77.

Convention Program
Presentation or panel sessions on a specific topic.

Experiential Program
Presentation of a specific topic but includes an interactive skill-building or active learning opportunity for participants.

Pre-Convention Workshops
4 or 6 hour workshops that take place before Convention and provide an in-depth discussion on current and emerging topics that transform higher education.

SCHOLARSHIP SESSION TYPES

Research-In-Process
Research-in-process sessions take the best parts of communal roundtable discussions, paper discussant feedback, and add the opportunity to develop a paper at almost any stage of readiness.

Methods Workshop
Methods workshops present a project that uses compelling research methods and teach others how to apply this method to their own work. Methods workshops should be considered continuing professional development allowing members to build self-efficacy and capacity around creating scholarship and assessment tools to bring back to their campuses.

Research & Practice Poster
Posters on display during scheduled times of ACPA21 with presentation times facilitated by the authors.
PHYLLIS L. MABLE
EMERGING LEADERS INSTITUTE

In 2016, ACPA embarked on an exciting journey to address systemic racism and historical and contemporary colonization apparent within higher education institutions and student affairs as a field. As such, the organization moves forward in its work to support faculty, administrators, and students to reflect upon their investments in oppressive systems of domination and to act to rebuild equitable places where all people can thrive and live out their full potentials. With that in mind, the Association works toward these goals with recognition of the following guiding words.

ACPA will direct resources, energy, and time toward addressing racial justice in student affairs and higher education around the world. Our lens is intersectional, intentional, and directed. The focus is on reducing the oppression of communities of color at the intersections of their identities, knowing that all oppressions are linked and that the work is ongoing. Our goal is to provide leading research and scholarship; tools for personal, professional, and career development; and innovative praxis opportunities for members that will actively inform and reshape higher education. We move toward this goal knowing that the roles and daily tasks of our jobs are important to the functioning of colleges and universities. We also know that racial justice and decolonization and the tasks of our jobs do not sit as dichotomous poles. Racial justice and decolonization is at our core; it underlies the work we each must do every day, in every way we can.

To summarize these operational truths, as an Association, ACPA believes:

- All forms of oppression are linked.
- Racism and colonization are real, present, enduring, intersectional, and systemic forms of oppression.
- Racism and colonization have informed the experience of all of us in higher education.
- Advocacy and social change require us to work to dismantle racism and colonization.
- Our collective education, research and scholarship, advocacy, and capacity will create positive change in higher education.
- We believe in and have hope for our individual capacity, desire, and drive to grow, learn, and change.

In line with the ACPA Mission, Vision, Values, the Strategic Imperative for Racial Justice & Decolonization, and the operational truths aligned with these guiding principles, ACPA21 worked tirelessly to align the Convention curriculum with the Imperative. If you are new to ACPA, the way you experience Convention will seem normal. For those who are returning for their second or 32nd ACPA, there are parts of Convention that will be different or maybe uncomfortable.

As a Convention steering team, we welcome you into that difference and discomfort and ask you to take a risk and engage in a curricular offering that may seem divergent from the types of learning and development opportunities with which you regularly engage. We as a program team, and an Association, are here to support you in the ways we can and we hope you will join us in rethinking and reshaping the future of higher education and student affairs.

Virtual Caucusing at ACPA21

Designed to make individual and collective progress toward the realization of our Strategic Imperative for Racial Justice and Decolonization, ACPA launched the race-based caucus experience at ACPA18 in Houston. At ACPA19 in Boston, we continued our progress with recruitment of moderators and revisions to caucusing questions as well as guidelines. ACPA20 in Nashville offered designated small group facilitators and intersectional caucus spaces.

ACPA21 has the unique opportunity to offer smaller groups of 8-12 participants for more connection and a fully scaffolded experience of two sessions with the same core group and a third facilitated session across racial groups.

What is Caucusing at ACPA?
Throughout the convention, attendees will have the opportunity to meet with colleagues and dialogue around issues of race and decolonization in higher education and student affairs as well as strategize ways to engage in personal and professional racial justice and decolonization action. These sessions will build upon each other, therefore we’re asking folks to sign up and commit to all three sessions. The first two sessions will be participant facilitated across race-alike groups and with the final session utilizing selected facilitators for a dialogue across and between racial groups.

As a result of Caucusing, members should:
- Articulate a deeper understanding of their own racial identities
- Connect with colleagues who engage in solidarity work toward racial justice and decolonization
- Identify issues of power, privilege, and oppression in our individual work and broader field
- Begin to individually and collectively develop strategies that move the self and field toward liberation and social change
- Crystallize their intention surrounding the strategic imperative on racial justice and decolonization for daily practice

The Racial Identity-focused Caucus groups we are hosting include: Arab/Middle Eastern, Asian/Asian American, Black/African American, International, Latinx, Multiracial/Biracial, Native American/Indigenous/Aboriginal, Pacific Islander, and White. Multiracial/biracial/transracial attendees can move between groups to match identities.

Day 1: Tuesday, 9 March | 1:15PM-2:30PM ET | Participant Facilitated | Race-alike
Day 2: Wednesday, 10 March | 1:15PM-2:30PM ET | Participant Facilitated | Race-alike
Day 3: Wednesday, 17 March | 2:30PM-3:45PM ET | Select Facilitators | Across race

Preparing for the Changes to Caucusing
Visit convention.myacpa.org for more information about the Caucusing Self-Study Guide. This Self-Study Guide is structured so Caucus participants engage in self-guiding learning and reflection around SIRJD leading up to Caucusing at Convention. We hope each person has an opportunity to utilize these resources for self-development and to share with peers.
OPENING KEYNOTE SPEAKER | SHAUN HARPER
Monday 8 March | 12:00PM - 1:00PM ET

Shaun R. Harper is a Provost Professor in the Rossier School of Education and the Marshall School of Business at the University of Southern California. He also is the Clifford and Betty Allen Chair in Urban Leadership, founder and executive director of the USC Race and Equity Center, Editor at Large of TIME, president of the American Educational Research Association, and a past president of the Association for the Study of Higher Education.

Dr. Harper’s research focuses primarily on race, gender, and other dimensions of equity in an array of organizational contexts, including colleges and universities, K-12 schools and districts, and corporations and firms. He has consulted with more than 200 institutions and businesses on strategies related to equity, diversity, and inclusion.

Professor Harper has published over 100 peer-reviewed journal articles and other academic publications. Johns Hopkins University Press is publishing his 13th book, Race Matters in College. His research has been cited in more than 14,000 published studies. The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, Hollywood Reporter, and several thousand other news outlets have quoted Professor Harper and featured his research. He has interviewed on CNN, ESPN, and NPR. He has testified to the U.S. House of Representatives, and presented his research at various White House and U.S. Department of Education convenings. He was appointed to President Barack Obama’s My Brother’s Keeper advisory council in 2015.

CULTUREFEST REIMAGINED
8-12 MARCH | 6:00PM - 6:45PM ET daily

The Coalition for Multicultural Affairs welcomes you to join us as we celebrate traditions, knowledge creation, interculturalism, and creative expression through the arts. Living through a global pandemic has required us to pivot, adapt and reimagine everything we do. This year has also required us to reground ourselves in the power of community, radical love, and culture as daily celebration. This year’s CultureFest is no different! We are excited to bring you a reimagined, unique approach. Join us over the course of 5 days (beginning at 6:00pm ET each day) for 30 minute community experiences providing you well-rounded engagement, including a panel discussion, embodied practices, lyricism and performing arts, and recognition. You do not want to miss these short, but impactful opportunities to find community and engage in cultural celebration.

Monday, 8 March - Opening, Land Acknowledgment and Getting to Know the Networks
Tuesday, 9 March - Pass the Mic: COVID-19, Community Care and Cultural Resistance
Wednesday, 10 March - Racial Healing through Yoga
Thursday, 11 March - Language and Linguistics Cypher! featuring artists from the 4 Networks
Friday, 12 March - CMA Awards and Recognition
CelebrACPA
Monday 8 March | 4:30PM - 5:30PM ET
Join in virtual community with your ACPA colleagues from around the globe and make new and deeper connections with fellow Convention attendees. CelebrACPA provides attendees with a virtual space to come together and to learn about the work of entity groups including Local Chapters, International Divisions, Commissions, Coalitions, Networks, and Communities of Practice. Enrich your knowledge and understanding of the work of our entity groups and connect virtually with leaders to consider new opportunities for future involvement.

Can’t make it to CelebrACPA? Entity leaders will also be available during the dates and times below and via the eShow chat feature during the Convention.

PLENARY SPEAKER: JONATHAN MOONEY
Tuesday 9 March 2021 | 2:30PM - 3:30PM ET

PLENARY SPEAKER: NANCY EVANS
Wednesday 10 March | 12:00PM - 1:00PM ET
Nancy J. Evans is a Professor Emerita in the School of Education at Iowa State University where she taught in and coordinated the Student Affairs program for 16 years. Dr. Evans served as dissertation chair for 33 doctoral students and advisor for 182 masters students during her career. Dr. Evans particularly enjoyed working with minoritized students and allies with whom she shared experiences, values, and interests. Her current six-member disability research team includes four of her former students.

Dr. Evans’s publications include 11 books and monographs, among them Disability in Higher Education, Student Development in College, and Toward Acceptance: Sexual Orientation Issues on Campus, as well as 41 book chapters and 46 journal articles. Over the course of her career, her research has examined the impact of the college environment on the development of students with minoritized identities. Currently, in conjunction with her research team, her scholarship focuses specifically on the experiences of disabled students in higher education.

CLOSING SESSION: JANET MOCK
Wednesday, 17 March | 3:45PM - 4:45 PM
Janet Mock is a writer, director and producer whose memoir, Redefining Realness, debuted on the New York Times bestsellers list in 2014. Her second book, Surpassing Certainty, a memoir about her twenties, was released in 2017. She is a sought-after speaker, an advocate for trans rights, and the founder of #GirlsLikeUs, a social media project that empowers trans women.

Janet made television history last year as the first trans woman of color to write, direct and produce for a series with Ryan Murphy’s FX drama Pose, which has assembled the largest cast of trans actors in series regular roles ever for a scripted series and has received six Emmy nominations.

Janet received the Harvard University’s Artist of the Year Award at the Harvard Foundation’s Culture Rhythms event this past March. Last year TIME listed her as one of the “100 Most Influential People of 2018”. In 2017 Variety named her one of its “Power of Women”, she was featured on Ebony’s Power 100 list, and the PEN Center USA honored her with an Award of Honor during their 27th annual Literary Awards Festival.

TIME called Janet one of “12 new faces of black leadership” and one of “the most influential people on the Internet” while Fast Company named her one of 2015’s “most creative people in business.” She’s appeared on the covers of Entertainment Weekly, Paper, Out and Riposte magazines, and she’s been interviewed on Late Night with Seth Meyers, Wendy Williams, Desus & Mero and Real Time with Bill Maher. Janet was also featured in Jay-Z’s music video for Family Feud alongside Beyoncé, Mindy Kaling and Rosario Dawson. The Ms. Foundation, Planned Parenthood, Feminist Press, GLSEN, Shorty Awards and the Sylvia Rivera Law Project have all honored Janet for her work.
The Institute for Critical Perspectives and Practices on College Masculinities will provide a space for student affairs educators, scholars, and higher education professionals to critically explore and reflect on the future of men and masculinities scholarship and practice.

This virtual institute will curate opportunities for critical reflection and provide tools for professional practice related to examining power and privilege as well as centering the experiences of marginalized masculinities in higher education. Through dynamic keynote speakers and interactive workshops, participants will gain critical perspectives and practices that will allow them to reimagine new possibilities for engaging and supporting college men.

PARTICIPANTS WILL:
- Explore emerging practices related to engaging and supporting college men
- Develop critical perspectives on masculinities related to power, privilege, and oppression
- Center the experiences of marginalized men in higher education through masculinities scholarship and practice

THIS EVENT IS PERFECT FOR:
- Educators who have a role related to engaging or supporting college men
- Scholars who have a research interest related to college men and masculinities
- Higher education professionals who have a personal interest in masculinities

RATES:
- $39 for ACPA members
- $59 for non-members
- $19 for ACPA student members
- $29 for non-member students

Group Registration
- 1-10 ACPA members- $100
- 10-20 ACPA members- $200

<td>Limited numbers of colleges have programs supporting students in recovery from substance abuse disorders (SUD). Representation in collegiate recovery programs (CRPs) tends to be overwhelmingly white, highlighting racial disparity in access to and use of such programs. ACPA’s Strategic Imperative for Racial Justice and Decolonization offers a tool for grounding our work with students with SUDs in love and incorporating critical consciousness, radical democracy, and humanization in ways that allow us to confront the privilege and oppression often found in recovery.</td>

<td>The Grand Challenges in Assessment Project is a national, collaborative strategic planning effort endorsed by nine higher education organizations, including ACPA. It includes faculty, staff, and students from 80 two-year and four-year colleges and universities. Using Assessment Findings to Increase Equity was identified by assessment professionals as the most critical challenge. We will present the draft strategic plan to ACPA members in order to engage with and receive timely input from student affairs educators that can improve the strategic plan.</td>

<td>The origins of cultural centers at universities started with student activism during the civil rights movement. Assessment data has shown that students perceive these centers as separate from the university itself. Simultaneously, the messaging of the administration includes an expectation to superficially meet student demands, with limited resources, support, and buy-in. This balancing act creates an impossible situation for professionals in this functional area.</td>

<td>This session will draw from new research on inclusion in higher education to explore how racism and racial marginalization are reproduced on college campuses. Although theories of student involvement frame experiences beyond the classroom as opportunities for growth and development, this research shows that the reality of students’ experiences is more complex. The presenter will explore the implications of these findings for supporting students as they navigate involvement and seek to build communities in more equitable ways.</td>

<td>Marginalization of certain religious, secular, and spiritual identities within higher education occurs due to intersections of Christian supremacy, structural racism, and colonization. These oppressions interlock in ways that compound the marginalization of non-Christians, people of color, and non-Christian people of color. This session will discuss Critical Religious Pluralism Theory, a new critical theory with the “primary goal of acknowledging the central roles of religious privilege, oppression, hegemony, and marginalization in maintaining inequality between Christians and non-Christians in the United States.”</td>

Presidential Spotlight Series: Indigenous presence, weaponry, and freedom in the glittering world

Amanda Tachine - Arizona State University

Systemic monsters, hauntings, and ghosts linger in the lives of Navajo college students. These systemic monsters and their hauntings are often normalized by a society that ignores the inequities in higher education by maintaining the status quo of Native people in the United States. Yet, Navajo students activate regenerative “Indigenous weapons” rooted in Navajo ways of knowing that sustain their survivance and reawaken power and the sovereignty of Indigenous presence and belonging in college settings and society.

Presidential Spotlight Series: Othersistering: A Holistic Perspective on Black Women Administrators in Higher Education

Mary Whitehead - University of Nevada Las Vegas

Historically, Black women have found ways to address, survive, and dismantle oppressive institutions that seek to erase them. In this workshop, Dr. Whitehead will discuss her research aimed to unearth new knowledge about the historical and current impact of membership in a NPHC sorority has on the lived experiences of Black women administrators in higher education when navigating these very institutions. These relationships have had a significant impact on mobility of Black women in higher education.

Presidential Spotlight Series Session: Bound by the Unconscious

Jennifer McCary - Bowling Green State University

This session will focus on ways we operate from the unconscious mind and how this can influence research, teaching, learning, policies, hiring, and much more. Participants will also hear about what the presenter refers to as unconscious doubt and the impact that being bound by the unconscious has on our communities.

Presidential Spotlight Series: Education & Mass Incarceration: Supporting Students from Stigma to Success

Michael Brick - Institute for Higher Education Policy

Higher education holds enormous potential to improve students’ lives, promote workforce participation, disrupt cycles of incarceration, and strengthen communities. However, there seems to be a disconnect between the potential of student affairs and ending mass incarceration. This session will discuss the potential intersections of student affairs and the criminal justice system, provide recommendations for supporting this often-forgotten student population, create tools for reducing stigma, and recommend best practices for instilling equity into relationships with justice-involved youth, adults, and their communities.

Monday, March 1, 2021

11:30AM-2:30PM
Paralysis to Progress: Engaging White Students in Racial Justice – Part 1
Sam Benson - Cornell University ; Perdita Das-Humphrey - Cornell University
This workshop will provide models of modern anti-racist engagement, activities, guided reflections, and resources to use with white students at different learning stages. We will highlight efforts already taking place on campuses as well as the accomplice work we hope to inspire. We will examine roles in an equity- and liberation-focused ecosystem, identify what is needed for students now, and practice interrupting white supremacy. Participants will receive numerous resources for the journey toward an equitable and just campus and society.

11:30AM-2:30PM
Summit for Black Student Affairs Professionals - Part 1
Jonathan A McElderry - Wake Forest University ; Ebony Ramsey - Maryville University; Jasmine Lee - University of Maryland-Baltimore County; Tonisha B Lane - Virginia Tech; Phillip Cockrell - University of Toledo; Samuel Offer - The Washington Consulting Group; D'Andra L Mull - University of Florida
The Summit for Black Student Affairs Professionals at the ACPA Conference will provide professional development, fellowship and networking among senior, mid-level, and new professionals of African descent (e.g., African Americans, Caribbean, South American) through informal and formal dialogue and mentoring. This one-day summit will allow participants to focus on and discuss issues of professional growth for individuals of African descent representing various gender identities.

3:00PM-5:00PM
Implementing Socially Just Assessment: Methods for Practice – Part 1
Gavin W Henning - New England College; Anne Lundquist - Campus Labs; Ciji Heiser - Western Michigan University
Socially just assessment is both process and product. It is an approach to ensure that assessment is implemented in an equitable way, but it is also a method for deconstructing systems of power and oppression. This session will include an overview of the construct of socially just assessment, explore frameworks and strategies for implementation, and will provide opportunity for participants to work alone and collaboratively to develop an actionable plan for implementing socially just assessment on their home campuses.

Meetings  all times listed in ET

Jonathan A McElderry - Wake Forest University; Ebony Ramsey - Maryville University; Jasmine Lee - University of Maryland-Baltimore County; Tonisha B Lane - Virginia Tech; Phillip Cockrell - University of Toledo; Samuel Offer - The Washington Consulting Group; D’Andra I Mull - University of Florida

The Summit for Black Student Affairs Professionals at the ACPA Conference will provide professional development, fellowship and networking among senior, mid-level, and new professionals of African descent (e.g., African Americans, Caribbean, South American) through informal and formal dialogue and mentoring. This one-day summit will allow participants to focus on and discuss issues of professional growth for individuals of African descent representing various gender identities.

3:00PM-5:00PM
Implementing Socially Just Assessment: Methods for Practice - Part 2
Gavin W Henning - New England College; Anne Lundquist - Campus Labs; Ciji Heiser - Western Michigan University

Socially just assessment is both process and product. It is an approach to ensure that assessment is implemented in an equitable way, but it is also a method for deconstructing systems of power and oppression. This session will include an overview of the construct of socially just assessment, explore frameworks and strategies for implementation, and will provide opportunity for participants to work alone and collaboratively to develop an actionable plan for implementing socially just assessment on their home campuses.

12:00PM-1:00PM  ACPA21 Opening Session featuring Keynote Speaker Shaun Harper

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #1

1:15PM-2:15PM  A Panel Discussion: Supporting International Students Holistically throughout COVID-19
A/S  LEAD  SJI  SLD
Yuezhong Zheng - Arizona State University; Yuan Zhou - University of San Francisco; Gaurav Harshe - Florida State University; Kriti Gopal - Indiana University-Bloomington; Sadiq Mohammed - Michigan State University

Four panelists will share their professional experience and perspectives for supporting international students in the U.S. since the start of the pandemic from areas such as residence life, international student services, academic advising, and community support. They will share best practices and lessons learned on how to support international students through the pandemic and beyond both from their professional roles in higher education and as former/current international students themselves.

1:15PM-2:15PM  Assessment as a Tool for Equity and Inclusion
AER  SJI
Gavin W Henning - New England College; Anne Lundquist - Campus Labs

With increased awareness of inequitable educational outcomes for college students and the impact of those disparate outcomes on life opportunities, higher education professionals must ensure that their processes do not further these inequities and instead address them. Assessment, when implemented with an equity lens, can be a vehicle that fosters equity and inclusion. Presenters will share an overview of equity-minded assessment, discuss how to ensure individual and organizational awareness, and identify specific strategies for adopting equity-minded assessment.

1:15PM-2:15PM  By what Measure? Reimagining Masculinity at the Crossroads of Disability
SJI
Kaz Sortino - University of South Carolina

Masculinity, the roles, behaviors, and norms, assigned to those who identify as male (Kimmel, M., & Bridges, T. 2011) can be harmful and marginalizing. Consider the intersection of masculinity and disability. For masculine-identifying individuals with physical disabilities, the societal framework and weight of both identities create developmental challenges as they navigate the environment of higher education, making it feel impossible for both identities to coexist. This session will discuss the reframing of masculinity and disability to better support students.

SJI  SLD
Marc P Johnston-Guerrero - Ohio State University; Charlene C Martinez - Oregon State University; Orkideh Mohajeri - West Chester University of Pennsylvania; Heather C Lou - Metropolitan State University; Nicole Leopardo - San Francisco State University; Kira Donnell - San Francisco State University; Wei Ming Dariotis - San Francisco State University; Stephanie Shippen - Private Practice

Despite growing numbers of Multiracial students in higher education, their inclusion is still limited due to campuses being organized through a monoracial paradigm. This session offers innovative tools and strategies that support moving multiraciality forward, with presenters sharing models for campus racial climate, staff-initiated services and retreats, student organization advising, and mixed race studies curriculum development. The strategies can be adapted and applied to various contexts ultimately to enhance Multiracial inclusion across research/assessment, teaching, and practice.

Color Complex: The Line of Division within Greek-Letter Organizations
Leslie Uchenna Ekpe - Texas Christian University; Ezinne Ofoegbu - North Carolina State University
The authors examine issues of racism and colorism in Greek-letter organizations. Using Harris’ (1993) concept of “whiteness as property” and anti-Blackness as frameworks for analyzing issues of color in Greek-letter organizations, we argue that anti-blackness has been perpetuated in Greek letter-organizations in the following ways: 1) history of race and “white clauses”, 2) contemporary racism and racial exclusion and 3) colorism and “brown paper bag tests”.

Conversations About Race: Exploring Sorority and Fraternity Social Media Messaging
Crystal E Garcia - University of Nebraska-Lincoln; Michael A Goodman - University of Maryland-College Park
National movements including Black Lives Matter and Abolish Greek Life have resurfaced attention to racial dynamics within sorority and fraternity life (SFL). This qualitative critical discourse analysis further explores these dynamics, examining social media messaging on topics connected to race/ethnicity by (inter)national SFL organizations. Using data drawn from 37 culturally-based and historically white sororities and fraternities over a four year span, this study examines racial messaging using tenets of Critical Race Theory and Critical Whiteness Studies.

1:15PM-2:15PM
Research-in-Process Session
Examining the Dynamics of Race, Racism, and Colorism in Sorority and Fraternity Life
Michael Brown - Iowa State University

Fostering Social Justice Awareness Through In-Person and Online Experiential Learning
Aoi Yamanaka - George Mason University; Graziella Pagliarulo McCarron - George Mason University
Experiential learning has a central role in social justice pedagogy. The challenges of social justice education through experiential learning include designing effective experiential activities and developing students’ efficacy and capacity to act as change agents. This session examines challenges for students who have limited time outside of class and addresses the essential elements of experiential learning in evolving students’ awareness of social justice and human rights and in cultivating skills and tools to interrupt systemic injustice and create positive change.

Exploring the Shifting Nature of LGBTQ+ Student Affairs Work
D Chase J Catalano - Virginia Tech; Antonio Duran - Auburn University; T.J. Jourian - Trans*Formational Change; Jonathan Pryor - California State University, Fresno
The presenters will engage attendees in dialogue on the experiences and challenges of those doing LGBTQ+ student affairs work on campuses. The session will draw on findings from a systematic literature review conducted on scholarship focused on LGBTQ+ student affairs work over the past 20 years. Attendees will have the opportunity to discuss the trends in literature, while sharing the implications of these patterns for their practice and what may be missing in scholarship.

Pandemic Life: Building Community as Incoming Students Seek Cultural Connections
Jack Nguyen - University of Florida
FiND, Forming our Identities through Networking and Development, is a 3-day pre-arrival program presented by the Asian Pacific Islander Desi Affairs at the University of Florida that hosted 223 participants, in which 95 were in-person and 120 were virtual on August 27-29, 2020. This session will review the logistical steps, collaborative measures, and strategic planning that led to hosting a concurrent hybrid program with zero outbreak and achievement of program’s learning outcomes for Asian/Asian American self-identified first year students.
Presidental Spotlight Series: Does “Sober” Mean “White?” Collegiate Recovery, Inequity, and The SIRJD
Becki Elkins - University of Wisconsin-La Crosse

Limited numbers of colleges have programs supporting students in recovery from substance use disorders (SUDs). Representation in collegiate recovery programs (CRPs) tends to be overwhelmingly white, highlighting racial disparity in access to and use of such programs. ACPA's Strategic Imperative for Racial Justice and Decolonization offers a tool for grounding our work with students with SUDs in love and incorporating critical consciousness, radical democracy, and humanization in ways that allow us to confront the privilege and oppression often found in recovery.

Reshaping Mobile Technology Strategies to Elevate Virtual and Hybrid Events.
Elizabeth Leslie - GuidebookEDU

Pre-pandemic, most of us had probably never attended a fully virtual or hybrid event. Now, they’re commonplace. But while digital and mobile platforms are now essential educational tools, many of us are still honing our strategies for implementing these platforms with a remote audience in mind. During this session, we’ll examine some emerging best practices and explore how to leverage your mobile strategy to launch an engaging, informative, and meaningful virtual event. Participants will be encouraged to share their own lessons learned.

The Support and Stifling of College Student Activism
Stephen Santa-Ramirez - University at Buffalo, The State University of New York; Katherine Cho - Miami University (Ohio)

In this session, the facilitators and panelists will highlight student activism efforts on college campuses in the U.S., the various ways students have and continue to enact transformational changes to create more inclusive and welcoming environments, and workshop best practices on supporting these collegians and other campus change agents.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #2

Research-in-Process Session Perspectives on Early-Career Professionals and Graduate Preparation Faculty
Rosemary J Perez - University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

The Personal is Professional: Exploring Emerging Student Affairs Professionals’ Intimacies
Ashley N Robinson - University of Connecticut; Sade Erinfolami - Sade Erinfolami Tania Flores University of Connecticut Trevor Madore Trevor Madore

Using Scholarly Personal Narratives, we examine how emerging student affairs professionals’ personal and intimate experiences of navigating the transition to a graduate preparation program shed light on the structural problems within higher education organizations and institutions. Rather than focusing on how to better prepare or teach emerging professionals to meet the needs of student affairs organizations and institutions, we invert the focus, considering what students’ personal challenges and troubles tell us about how organizations and institutions may need to change.

Faculty in Student Affairs Graduate Preparation Programs: A Literature Review
Graham F. Hunter - University of Dayton; Shane W. Borah - University of Dayton

A research-based perspective on faculty members working in student affairs graduate preparation programs remains underdeveloped despite their critical role in training emerging practitioners. This literature review explores the existing research related to student affairs graduate preparation faculty published in peer-reviewed journals in the past 30 years.

ACPA President to President Series: Melvin Monette-Barajas

<td>Latinx discourses in the U.S. have long promoted a pan-ethnic identity that invisibilizes the broad diversity of Latinx. On college campuses, Latinx spaces have been found to be violent spaces for Afro-Latinx and other communities (Haywood, 2017). In this session, the presenters will review a year of programming called “Decolonize La Casa” at Yale’s Latinx Cultural Center that focused on anti-Blackness, Indigenous erasure, and Queer/Trans exclusion. Attendees will discuss how to move beyond traditional heritage month programming that promote homogeneity.</td>

<td>Student workers in higher education felt the pain of moving remote as both learners and employees. On top of virtual classwork, student employees who were able to maintain employment face additional barriers to successfully complete their tasks, the ultimate challenge being maintaining motivation and engagement to their work when facetime with supervisors means more screen time. This session will detail how to successfully manage student employees virtually, engage them in the work and leverage their skills in unique, virtual ways.</td>

<td>The Grand Challenges in Assessment Project is a national, collaborative strategic planning effort endorsed by nine higher education organizations, including ACPA. It includes faculty, staff, and students from 80 two-year and four-year colleges and universities. Using Assessment Findings to Increase Equity was identified by assessment professionals as the most critical challenge. We will present the draft strategic plan to ACPA members in order to engage with and receive timely input from student affairs educators that can improve the strategic plan.</td>

Transforming Racial Dialogues: Building Affinity Courses in Graduate Preparation Programs
Tristen Hall - Miami University-Oxford; Grace Hymel - Miami University-Oxford Sydney Feeney Miami University

Graduate education programs are increasingly committed to social justice missions. A part of these missions include courses around diversity, equity and inclusion. Within these courses, many students struggle to have dialogue across racial differences due to white fragility and the burden of educating white students about racism. Acknowledging these realities, graduate students developed two racial affinity sections based on student identified needs. In this session, presenters will share their experience leading the course, specific considerations, and any challenges or limitations.

Unpacking Structural Inequality: Introduction to Neoliberalism in Higher Education
Hannah Hyun White - University of California-San Diego; Jonathon Sun - Rider University Kevin Huang Bowling Green State University

In this session, presenters will examine how racism and neoliberalism shape the ways we approach and engage in work as HESA professionals. Presenters will provide an overview of existing literature and a series of critical analyses that explain how racial, social, and political contexts shape the perpetuation and toxicity of neoliberalism in our field. Presenters will engage participants in group discussion and individual reflection to begin confronting our complicities in reproducing harmful systems of neoliberalism and oppression in our communities.

Examining the Professional Preparation of SFL Practitioners Supporting Culturally-Based Organizations
Antonio Duran - Auburn University; Crystal Garcia - University of Nebraska - Lincoln; Hannah Reyes - Auburn University

This session will offer audiences the opportunity to engage in dialogue on the experiences and challenges of Sorority and Fraternity Life (SFL) professionals advising culturally-based organizations. The session will draw on findings from a qualitative study to give insight into the influences that graduate schools, onboarding, and previous professional experiences played in how SFL practitioners supported culturally-based organizations. Attendees will be able to discuss considerations for professionals dedicated to supporting minoritized communities, both in and out of SFL.

A Conversation with Senior Level Administrators
This closed session will include various Senior Level Administrators as we review proposals for, and enter into conversation around, the established Senior Level Administrator/Emerging Senior Level Administrator Programs.

CSI Roundtable Discussion: Community-Service/Service-Learning
Join the CSI in a roundtable discussion for members who are involved in civic engagement, community service, service-learning, and any other volunteer focused positions. Through this roundtable, participants will engage in the process of learning from peers during discussions of current trends, notable programs, and sharing of resources. In particular, there will be a focus on political engagement during this election cycle and ways in which functional positions and focuses may change with relation to politics. General topics will be prepared, but the discussions are open to any topics participants choose to bring to the table in this “choose your own adventure” type program.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #3

Animals on Campus: Ethical, Legal, and Logistical Considerations
Jonathan J Kandell - Universities at Shady Grove; Kathryn P Alessandria - West Chester University Meera Menon The Ohio State University Zhanna Elberg University of Buffalo

This program will present the Higher Education Mental Health Alliance’s (HEMHA’s) guide: Animals on Campus. We will: 1) discuss the guide’s purpose, scope and limitations; 2) explain the differences between service, therapy, and emotional support animals, and the legal rights of access for each; and 3) review risks and legal and ethical issues associated with animals on campus, including accommodating and approving requests for Emotional Support Animals (ESAs). The presentations will be delivered by visual slides, didactics, and interactive discussion.
3:30PM-4:30PM  Developing Native Student Leaders: A toolkit for creating counter-colonial models
Phenocia Bauerle - University of California-Berkeley; Louisa Harstad - University of California-Berkeley

This session outlines a model for supporting Native American/American Indian students in higher education institutions, producing leaders and scholars confident in their Native identities and engaging in counter-colonial practices. Identifying core institutional components crucial for supporting Native students holistically, the presentation will outline a model developed by Native American Student Development at UC Berkeley, and ways that it may be adapted to fit the needs of other institutions seeking to better serve NA/AI students.

3:30PM-4:30PM  Facing the disagreeable mirror: Interrogating leadership educators’ roles in inequity
Lauren N Irwin - University of Iowa

Leadership educators play a pivotal role in validating students as leaders. Our theories, programs, and practices communicate messages to students about who leaders are (not) and what leadership is (not). This session is organized around the claim that leadership legitimacy functions as a property of Whiteness and invites participants to reflect and discuss how our beliefs, theories, and practices preserve and challenge forms of domination before collectively identifying resources and tools disrupt inequalities in leadership education.

3:30PM-4:30PM  Host Culture: Side effects of worldviews and values during COVID-19
Jenny Vang - Mississippi State University; Kaleb L Briscoe - Mississippi State University

Student groups are in search of additional support during the pandemic, especially international students. As higher institutions provide services for adjustment to the host culture, international students are faced with other challenges such as immigration and visa restriction, travel ban, and safety concerns. This session will focus closely on the mental health of international students in the wake of COVID-19 including challenges that are exacerbated by other social and political structures within higher education and student affairs.

3:30PM-4:30PM  Developing Native Student Leaders: A toolkit for creating counter-colonial models
Phenocia Bauerle - University of California-Berkeley; Louisa Harstad - University of California-Berkeley

This session outlines a model for supporting Native American/American Indian students in higher education institutions, producing leaders and scholars confident in their Native identities and engaging in counter-colonial practices. Identifying core institutional components crucial for supporting Native students holistically, the presentation will outline a model developed by Native American Student Development at UC Berkeley, and ways that it may be adapted to fit the needs of other institutions seeking to better serve NA/AI students.

3:30PM-4:30PM  Disabled Students’ Involvement: Using Planning and Agency to Address Ableism
Nancy Evans; Ellen M Broido - Bowling Green State University; Jody A Kunk-Czaplicki - Bowling Green State University; Val M. Erwin - Bowling Green State University; Charlie E. Varland - Boise State University

Inclusion of disabled students in the co-curriculum requires more than ADA compliance. We explored influences on, and outcomes of, co-curricular experiences of these students. Grounded in environmental and social models of disability, we found that (1) ableism limited and changed participation, (2) responses to disclosure influenced involvement, (3) participants’ agency in planning ahead facilitated involvement, and (4) involvement varied by impairment. Providing information in advance about access and encouragement of peers and staff will support full participation of disabled students.

3:30PM-4:30PM  Research-in-Process Session
Highlighting Stories of Agency and Success for Individuals with Disabilities
Ryan A Miller - University of North Carolina at Charlotte

3:30PM-4:30PM  British Learning Disabled Tutors: Student success through individualization
Valerie M Erwin - Bowling Green State University; Dwight Richardson Kelly - Independent Scholar

Little has been published on methods of direct support for higher education students with specific learning disabilities. Such support is common in the UK, but under threat from changing policies. We interviewed twelve UK professionals providing this support to learn about their methods. Thematic analysis was used to analyze the interviews. Initial themes included “Providing and Adapting Strategies,” “Increasing Confidence and Independence,” and “Student Led.” Overall, the approach of the tutors suggested a high degree of individualization. Implications are discussed.
3:30PM-4:30PM
Shifting Assessment Thought and Practice: The Inquiry-Based Praxis Model
Dana Malone - Dana Malone; James D Breslin - Bellarmine University
A comprehensive system of assessment is not a checklist of one-off assessment activities. It is its own way of thinking about our work, of making sense of peoples’ experiences and perceptions, and continuously improving our practices, across all roles and functional areas. In this session, we will engage in a conceptual – yet interactive – dialogue that shifts the understanding of assessment from a circular cycle to an integrated, iterative multidimensional process that engenders reflexivity and justice in our work.

3:30PM-4:30PM
The Ebony Tower: Career Trajectory Planning for Black Female Leadership
Nuchelle L Chance - Fort Hays State University; Kellie M Dixon - North Carolina Agricultural & Technical State University
Black women are grossly underrepresented in higher education administration, specifically in the presidency, as they make up only five percent of all college presidents (American Council on Education [ACE], 2017). This presentation intends to shed light on the value of mentorship and sponsorship as factors that promote Black women’s leadership development. This presentation will provide direction and guidance to those women attempting to advance in the pipeline of higher education administrative leadership.

3:30PM-4:30PM
The Implementation of Gender-Inclusive Housing: A Second Look
Deborah J Taub - Binghamton University; R. Bradley Johnson - UNC Greensboro Mackenzie Ottens Binghamton University
Gender-inclusive housing (GIH) has been a topic of discussion in college and university housing for the past two decades or more. Taub et al. (2016) produced the first comprehensive, systematic study of the development and implementation of GIH in U.S. colleges and universities. The current study follows up on this study to determine the current status of GIH. The session will provide opportunities to discuss SIRJD implications and implications for practice.

3:30PM-4:30PM
Using a Psychosociocultural Approach to Empower Men of Color
Adrian Huerta - University of Southern California; Maria Romero-Morales - University of Southern California Maritza E Salazar Maritza Salazar Jude Paul Dizon University of Southern California Julie V Nguyen University of Southern California
This session provides practitioners with an asset-based framework to holistically understand what contributes to persistence for men of color in higher education. We use the Psychosociocultural (PSC) model that embeds both individual and institutional factors that help students of color. Discussion will focus on media representation, systems of support, and cultural expectations, and how these factors impact men of color. Implications for support of men of color are discussed and adapted to work for both in-person and online programming.

3:30PM-4:30PM
Woke White Women: Developing Antiracist Consciousness in White Women Students
Katie L Bennett - University of Pittsburgh
This session introduces a new conceptual model, the Antiracist Consciousness Development Cyclical Continuum (ACDCC), to address how student affairs professionals and faculty can encourage antiracist consciousness development in white women students. Participants will gain an understanding of the ACDCC, its conceptual foundations, and its application in higher education. Hands-on engagement with the model will allow participants to develop practical changes they can implement at their own institutions to encourage antiracist development within this student population.

3:30PM-4:30PM
Presidential Spotlight Series: Double Consciousness & Cultural Centers: Navigating Student Perception & Institutional Expectations
Sienna Abdulahad - Tulane University
The origins of cultural centers at universities started with student activism during the civil rights movement. Assessment data has shown that students perceive these centers as separate from the university itself. Simultaneously, the messaging of the administration includes an expectation to superficially meet student demands, with limited resources, support, and buy-in. This balancing act creates an impossible situation for professionals in this functional area.

TUESDAY 9 MARCH 2021

MEETINGS all times listed in ET

10:00AM-11:00AM CCSAL Open Meeting & Roundtable
CCSAL would like to provide this opportunity for colleagues who work in the functional area to learn more about the commission, directorate, and spend time in community with one another. As such, this will be presented as an open roundtable for discussion. CCSAL will provide topics and a space to dialogue with one another.

10:30AM-11:30AM CSI Roundtable Discussion: Fraternity & Sorority Life
This is a time dedicated to Fraternity and Sorority Life professionals within ACPA to gather, talk about trends, highlight organizational changes, and network to help advance our work.

11:00AM-12:00PM Career Services Latte/Lunch & Learn
Join us to engage with other career services professionals attending ACPA. Whether its time for coffee or lunch, join us in conversations around our work with students and constituencies. Topics may include innovative programming, virtual career fairs, microinternships to recaps & reflections from some of the career services programs represented at ACPA this year. Through small informal discussions, we hope to spark conversations on best practices and new ideas.

11:15AM-12:00PM Commission for Two Year Colleges Virtual Coffee Talk, Lounge and Learn
Commission for Two Year Colleges lounge and learn opportunity for registrants to learn more about the Commission, as well as information regarding sponsored programs and events at Convention.

12:00PM-1:00PM Global Reception
This event provides networking opportunities for ACPA International attendees and anyone passionate about international higher education. Our Commission will also announce our annual awards and scholarship recipients during this event.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #4

12:00PM-1:00PM Complicating the Study of Sex Education Backgrounds and Sexual Violence on College Campuses - Research-in-Process Session

Exploring College Student Reflections of their Sex Education Backgrounds
Amber Manning-Ouellette - Oklahoma State University-Stillwater; Josephine Shikongo - Oklahoma State University

Institutions need to better understand college student experiences and meanings associated with sex education to inform policy, the reinforcement of rape culture and gender dynamics, and practice. The purpose of this study is to examine college student reflections and experiences associated with comprehensive sex education (CSE) curricula in the U.S prior to attending colleges and universities. Findings indicate that CSE continues to situate itself in maintaining gender binary discourse, limited educator priorities, and patriarchal influences.

Understanding Whiteness and Sexual Violence in Higher Education
Marigold Hudock - Texas A&M University

Racially and sexually marginalized populations at higher education institutions remain most at risk for sexual violence, yet efforts to address sexual violence mainly focus on the experiences of white, cisgender, and heterosexual students. This scholarly paper aims to explain the connection between whiteness and sexual violence, and why that relationship matters to predominantly White institutions. The reviewed literature revealed gaps in current scholarship regarding the role of higher education in dismantling whiteness in sexual violence prevention efforts.
12:00PM-1:00PM  Applying Crip Theory to Foster Accessible Student Affairs Practices
Elisa S Abes - Miami University-Oxford; Emily Abrams - Michigan State University; Daniel Darkow - Miami University-Oxford; Colleen Floyd - Miami University; Michelle K Wallace - Northeastern University

Crip theory presents disability as fluid and challenges dominant discourses that define who and what are normal (Kafer, 2013; McRuer, 2006). Crip theory challenges the discourse of compulsory able-bodiedness/ mindedness that pushes people toward an unobtainable normalcy, determining who is disabled and less worthy. To “crip” is to expose compulsory able-bodiedness/mindedness. In this session, a panel of scholar-practitioners and the audience will together crip student affairs practice and offer ideas for applying crip theory to foster accessible student affairs practices.

12:00PM-1:00PM  Becoming Storytelling Superheroes: Strategies for Communicating Our Value with Data
Sherry A Woosley - Macmillan Learning; Dianne M Timm - Eastern Illinois University; Hilary L Lichterman - University of South Carolina-Columbia; Tiffany S Conde - University of South Carolina-Columbia

In the best of times, using data to show the value of our work and drive others to action can be difficult. This has become more challenging with COVID-19 and social distancing, where physical and virtual divides impede communication. Storytelling is a tool to cross these divides, make meaningful connections, and communicate the value of student affairs. This session will draw on classic storytelling theories, elements, and practices to provide a framework for strengthening how we tell our data stories.

12:00PM-1:00PM  Building Meaningful Campus Engagement around Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion
Ash Hanson - Aramark; Ash Hanson - Aramark; Chanel Brown - Aramark

Today’s ethnically diverse college student population is bringing fresh insights, viewpoints, and expectations to all aspects of life, learning, and work. Recently, 94% of Gen Z students indicated their beliefs that companies should help address social issues – which speaks to the importance of advancing a dynamic, diverse, and inclusive campus culture. This session will promote conversation and collaborative strategies - around building student engagement, community involvement, and a sustainable competitive advantage - to drive meaningful outcomes from your DE&I goals.

12:00PM-1:00PM  Decolonizing Student Conduct: Adaptable and Restorative Approaches to Conflict Transformation
Lena Kavaliauskas Crain - Denison University

Organizational approaches to addressing discord are historically modeled on criminal processes with limited opportunities for dialogue and restoration. Like their criminal justice counterparts, such practices employ oppressive mechanisms that discount the voices of those involved and disproportionately harm underrepresented communities. Applying a spectrum model of conflict resolution better promotes healing, equity, and social justice through peace. Participants in this session will explore adaptable and restorative practices to address campus discord and ways to implement conflict resolution policies and practices.

12:00PM-1:00PM  Traumatic Stress & Support of Student Affairs Educators During Covid-19
Robert J Lynch - Appalachian State University

This past year has brought enough traumatic events to fill a lifetime. From the Covid-19 global pandemic and subsequent economic collapse, to the continued assault on Black and Brown communities, few if any have been left untouched this year. This session uses data from a survey of student affairs practitioners focusing on traumatic stress and support systems at the onset of the Fall 2020 term to explore how our work environments can exacerbate issues of trauma for staff.

12:00PM-1:00PM  Getting in the (Governing) Board Game: Partnerships for Realizing Equity
Demetri L Morgan - Loyola University-Chicago; Lucy A LePeau - Indiana University-Bloomington

Partnerships and coalition-building are critical ways to advance diversity, equity, and inclusion work. Yet the work of Governing Boards remains siloed and disjointed from many institutional initiatives, despite their formal and informal ability to champion and sustain efforts that promote the long-term viability of the institution. Informed by a recent empirical study, this session focuses on helping senior student affairs leaders strategize how to effectively engage and partner with Governing Boards as stakeholders in diversity, equity, and inclusion work.
12:00PM-1:00PM
From Master’s to Ph.D.: The Student of Color Experience
Antonio Duran - Auburn University; Lane Washington - University of Florida; Tiffany L. Steele - Oakland University
The experience of doctoral students of color who go “straight through” from a master’s in higher education is unique. However, this topic is rarely explored or discussed extensively. Through a panel discussion informed by a framework of socialization of graduate and professional students, presenters will share their personal experiences after completing their Ph.D. to unpack information about the doctoral process from the lens of going “straight through” to shed more light on this population.

12:00PM-1:00PM
Leading an Association during multiple pandemics: Accepting the challenge!
Vernon A Wall - LeaderShape, Inc.; Chris L Moody - ACPA; Angela Batista - Champlain College; Danielle Morgan Acosta - Clark University; Julie Payne - Kirchmeier Northwestern University
What is it like to lead a higher education association during an unprecedented time in our nation? Please join ACPA and NASPA leaders for a conversation on the struggles and triumphs of the past year as both associations navigated (and continue to navigate) COVID-19, Racial Injustice, Xenophobia (to name just a few). This will also be a time of “forward thinking” as both associations look to 2021 and beyond as we continue to serve our members and the student affairs profession.

12:00PM-1:00PM
Transfer Myth: Embedding Equity in the Transfer Process
Jacquelyn Rogers - College of Southern Maryland; Michael Brick - Institute for Higher Education Policy
Throughout the nation, transfer populations have been on the rise, especially in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. More institutions are seeing students transferring from multiple places and are creating policies to support these students. However, in the process of creating streamlined procedures, justice issues are being left out. Through the lens of the strategic imperative, this session will emphasize the need to keep justice at the forefront of transfer policies and will illuminate the hidden barriers within the transferability conversation.

12:00PM-1:00PM
Black Women are LIT-erature
Kellyn Mackerl-Cooper - Eastern Michigan University; Di-Tu Dissassa - University of Maryland-College Park; Quentrese Hinton - Central Michigan University
Attrition rates for doctoral students are at an alarming 50% and only 6.1% of Black students are awarded degrees annually (Shavers & Moore, 2014). Although Black women reach degree completion two times more than their Black men counterparts, women in doctoral programs are often most isolated and dissatisfied in higher education. Literature has cited the chilly climates women experience in academia (Sandler et al., 1986). Our time will allow constituents to explore the nuances of intersecting identities within the academy.

MEETINGS & EVENTS
all times listed in ET

1:15PM-2:30PM
Strategic Imperative/Caucusing Session #1
Throughout the convention, attendees will have the opportunity to meet with colleagues and dialogue around issues of race and decolonization in higher education and student affairs as well as strategize ways to engage in personal and professional racial justice and decolonization action. Caucusing has become a meaningful part of the ACPA Convention experience and helps attendees feel connected to something REAL.

2:30PM-3:30PM
Commission for Campus Safety and Emergency Preparedness Directorate Meeting

2:30PM-3:30PM
Plenary Speaker Jonathan Mooney

4:00PM-6:00PM
Commission for Career Services Social
Join us for any part or all of the Commission for Career Services Social! Engage and socialize with fellow ACPA attendees and members of the directorate. Open to anyone with an interest in the career services functional area.
EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #5

3:30PM-4:30PM Research-in-Process Session

Exploring Narratives of Black Student Experiences and Activism
Jordan S West - George Washington University

3:30PM-4:30PM

#BlackLivesMatter: Implications of Black Lives Matter on College Campuses

Relius J Johnson - Louisiana State University

A/S

The purpose of this study is to contest and change the Higher Education system around racial inequality impacting college campuses. This study aims to increase awareness of racial events centered around people who identify as Black or African American. This mixed-method design provides an exploratory process that seeks to learn more about the influence of the Black Lives Matter movement on college campuses regarding student activism, campus culture and climate, and responses to racial incidents.

Against All Odds: Black Women Doctoral Students’ Experiences

Kaleb L Briscoe - Mississippi State University; Dr. Candace N. Hall - Southern Illinois University Edwardsville; Tiffany L Steele - Oakland University

A/S

There is growing scholarship on the doctoral journeys of Black women in higher education. To expand this research, 3 Black women reflect on their doctoral experiences in higher education. Using a Black feminist autoethnographic approach, participants were able to identify similar experiences of moving from surviving to thriving in academia. Authors will provide ways for Black graduate women to thrive during their studies and recommendations for higher education to call for systemic changes that influence institutionalized support for Black women.

Black & Abroad: The Experiences of Black Global Educators at HBCUs

Stephanie Tilley - Prairie View A & M University; Travis Smith - University of Florida; Ashleigh Brown-Grier - Howard University

A/S

The presentation will explore the experiences of Black International Educators at HBCUs who are committed to advancing study abroad opportunities for marginalized students. Through a panel discussion, the presenters will highlight the impact of global opportunities on racially minoritized students. The presenters will also engage in critical conversations regarding barriers that may affect their student participation in global experiences. With a lens rooted in culturally responsive pedagogy, the presenters will provide strategies to increase participation and opportunities among HBCU students.

Building Inclusive Conflict Excellence in Student Conduct Programs

Nancy Geist Giacomini - St. Bonaventure University

SJI

Reframing Campus Conflict: Student Conduct Practice through the Lens of Inclusive Excellence (Stylus 2020, 2nd ed.) Authors will present diverse innovative perspectives on how to build “inclusive conflict excellence” using the spectrum model (Schrage & Thompson, 2008) approach to student conflict and conduct. Participants will be introduced to published worksheets, case studies and questions that engage challenges related to COVID-19, student activism, Title IX, and freedom of expression through lenses of restorative, transformative, and procedural justice for more inclusive outcomes.

Moving Beyond Words: Land Acknowledgments as Professional Practice

Cori M Bazemore-James - University of Minnesota; Kara Strass - Miami University; Robert Hancock - University of Victoria; Tara Nelson - North Dakota State University

LEAD

Join a panel of Indigenous Student Affairs leaders as we discuss when, how, why and why not to use land acknowledgment statements. We will share our personal perspectives and the practices we use at our institutions across the U.S. and Canada. Attendees will learn the following about land acknowledgments: their meaning, what they should entail, who should do them, where to do them, the argument for not doing them, and the responsibilities that go along with them.

Enigmatic Emergency: Building Cultural Capital through Success Coaching

Micah Hodges - George Mason University; Susan Schott - George Mason University

A/S

Nationwide, college students have had to adapt to new ways of learning, one of which is being able to learn in a predominately virtual space. As a result of students’ intersecting identities, cultural capital inequities affect the education they receive. In Fall 2020, George Mason University implemented an institution-wide success coaching program for all incoming freshmen. This presentation will explore success coaching and how it can be applied in building students’ cultural capital.
Multiracial People in Higher Education: Insights from Faculty and Staff
Charmaine L Wijeyesinghe - Independent; Naliyah Kaya - Montgomery College; Lisa A Combs - The Ohio State University; Rebecca Cepeda - The Ohio State University; Victoria K Malaney-Brown - Columbia University

This session draws on the lived experiences of four diverse Multiracial faculty and professional staff-spanning their years as undergraduates to their current positions. Representing a range of racial backgrounds, social identities and experiences at public and independent 4-year institutions, a 2 year college, and a HBCU, their stories illustrate the diversity of Multiracial experiences on campus and how these experiences inform topics such as identity fluidity and choice, colorism, anti-Blackness, Multiracial inclusion and exclusion, and academic and co-curricular DEI efforts.

Presidential Spotlight Series: Reimagining Student Involvement and Inclusion in Higher Education
Blake Silver - George Mason University

This session will draw from new research on inclusion in higher education to explore how racism and racial marginalization are reproduced on college campuses. Although theories of student involvement frame experiences beyond the classroom as opportunities for growth and development, this research shows that the reality of students’ experiences is more complex. The presenter will explore the implications of these findings for supporting students as they navigate involvement and seek to build communities in more equitable ways.

Self-Compassion in Student Affairs: Caring for Yourself While Helping Others
Sarah H Porter - Austin Community College

Have you ever noticed how much more kindly and gently we speak to our colleagues and students than we do to ourselves? As Student Affairs practitioners navigate multiple pandemics alongside the students we serve, it is more important than ever to build our self-compassion skills. This session will introduce participants to the core components of mindful self-compassion, several simple ways to incorporate self-compassion into our daily lives, and the benefits we will gain from treating ourselves like a dear friend.

Deployment of Intrusive Advising within the Dynamic Student Development Metatheodel
Pietro Sasso - Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville; Shelley Price-Williams - University of Northern Iowa

Intrusive advising, also known as proactive advising, is comprised of techniques that originate from prescriptive and developmental models, as well as integrated advising models. All of the aforementioned models will be defined and explained with the goal of highlighting how these approaches relate to student persistence and retention. This session will illustrate how intrusive advising can be implemented within the Dynamic Student Metatheodel (DSDM) to promote student success and foster student retention.

Voice and Responsibility: Using Arts-Based Methods in Research Exploration
Dirk Jonathan Rodricks - University of Toronto

The workshop discusses and explores the challenges of representation and embodied practice in using arts-based methods, specifically drama, in community-grounded ethnographic research with young people. How do we take care around the appropriation of voice, questions of power, and the authority of speaking? What considerations might we miss? How might the arts fail us? We (re)consider how art might be a potent form of storytelling as we explore some drama techniques together.

What is Student Affairs? Examining Introductory Student Affairs Courses
Laila McCloud - Western Illinois University; Laura Parson - North Dakota State University

How many times have you heard someone say, “I didn’t know this was a career I could pursue!” after learning about student affairs? One of the challenges faced by student affairs is helping professionals talk about what they do with their students and colleagues. Through their curriculum decisions, student affairs graduate programs help emerging student affairs professionals develop their understanding of the field. This session will address how introductory student affairs courses can increase awareness of student affairs.
MEETINGS & EVENTS  all times listed in ET

4:45PM-5:30PM  Alumni & Friends of Elon University

4:45PM-5:45PM  CWI Social East
Please join the Coalition for Women’s Identities to connect with members! This social will be held at 4:45-5:45 Eastern. For folks who would like to join in the same time frame in the Pacific Time Zone, or for folks looking for a later Eastern time slot, please look for CWI Social West.

5:00PM-6:00PM  Community Connections with the Asian Pacific American Network (APAN)
Come share time and space with the Asian Pacific American Network (APAN)! EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #6

1:15PM-2:15PM  A Path From Incarceration to Education: Supporting Formerly Incarcerated Students
A/S  SJI
Chelsea Blakeley, Javi Rodriguez, Ieisha Kitchen, Ezra Baccar, Shayleen Fay - California State University-Fullerton

This session will present the unique challenges formerly incarcerated students face when pursuing higher education post-release. We will provide insight into the institutional and societal barriers that shape the student experience. We will discuss our role as student affairs professionals when working with individuals who have been formerly incarcerated, and introduce promising practices for fostering student success.

1:15PM-2:15PM  Black and Latin* Leadership Education: Cultural Empowerment in the Classroom
LEAD  SJI
Jennifer M Batchelder - Florida State University; Darius Robinson - Rutgers University-New Brunswick

During this engaging session, we will describe the cultural challenges Black and Latin* students face in learning leadership. Taking an asset-based approach, we will share cultural approaches to leadership education in an academic setting and invite participants into reflection and discussion on the practice of these approaches. We will further differentiate between leadership education for a general population and for the intended Black and/or Latin* population and how both can be achieved.

1:15PM-2:15PM  Breaking the Virtual Ice: Strategies for Engaging Virtual Environments
SJI  TECH
Connie Oh - Orange Coast College; Efren Diaz - California State University, Fullerton

This session will discuss the importance of creating virtual environments for students with care and intentionality. Rooted in trauma-informed care and critical race theory, presenters will provide examples of activities that can be facilitated via common web conferencing platforms (like Zoom) and give a framework and best practices on how to create your own virtual environments to promote engagement and connection with students. While this workshop focuses on the virtual environment, many of the practices can be applied to offline environments as well. Participants will take away a concrete toolkit to facilitate an engaging and inclusive virtual and in-person environment.

1:15PM-2:15PM  Research-in-Process Session
Understanding the Nuances of Latinx/a/o Identities and Experiences in Postsecondary Education
Alan A Acosta - Clark University; Vasti Torres - Indiana University

1:15PM-2:15PM  Anti-Blackness and the Monolith Construction of Higher Education Latinidad
AER  SJI
Luz N Burgos-Lopez - University of Connecticut

In this scholarly paper, I expand on the construction of Latinidad in higher education by offering a conceptual analysis to examine the erasure of Blackness and anti-Blackness with Latinx literature. I demonstrate how this literature often erases Blackness and/or does not address anti-Blackness and in so doing perpetuates anti-Black ideology.

1:15PM-2:15PM  Conviviendo, Sobreviviendo: Experiences of Chicana/Latina Working Professionals in Graduate School
A/S  SJI
Rocio Mendoza - California State University-Long Beach; Rachel Camacho - Claremont Graduate University; Maria Reyes - Claremont Graduate University; Nancy Ramirez - East Los Angeles College

Mentoring graduate students and creating systems of support are often cited as some of the most significant factors that contribute to positive social, emotional, and academic outcomes for Chicana/Latina students. Oftentimes, however, this support can be limited for working professionals who face limited resources to engage in academia. This paper explores the experiences of Chicana/Latinas pursuing doctoral degrees in higher education and the ways that their convivencia has helped them navigate their multiple roles, identities, and responsibilities as working professionals.
Critical Approaches to College Student Leadership Education: A Conversation
Nicholas Tapia-Fuselier - University of Colorado at Colorado Springs; Lauren N Irwin - University of Iowa; Cameron C Beatty - Florida State University; Isheeta Rahman - University of California-Santa Barbara; Anna Wagner - The Ohio State University; Marbeya Montero -California Polytechnic State University-San Luis Obispo

For too long, college student leadership research and practice has privileged dominant narratives, reinforced whiteness, and evaded conversations about power and other forms of domination. This panel discussion between scholars and practitioners is organized to provide critical perspectives on traditional approaches to leadership education and amplify critical and liberatory approaches that explicitly grapple with power and marginalization, complicate our notions of racially neutral leadership tools, and ultimately center equity, inclusion, and justice.

Fat in the Academy: Creating and Reclaiming Our Space
Beatriz Barron - University of California-San Diego; Gabriel Pulido - Pennsylvania State University-University Park

In this session participants will be asked to think about the ways in which White supremacy, colonialism and capitalism impacts the experiences of fat collegians. More specifically, the presenters will situate their experiences as fat people of color by examining how institutional and campus cultural practices have a severe impact on their wellness. Participants can be expected to have their thinking disrupted and pushed to imagine what a truly inclusive, fat-affirming space can look like.

Student Affairs Professionals: Experiencing Unemployment, Sharing Stories, Building Community
Conor P McLaughlin - Bowling Green State University

This session is a panel of folks from across the field of student affairs and higher education discussing their experiences with unemployment and the role it played in their career trajectory. They will discuss support, persistence, and also create space with attendees to build community and network across experiences of unemployment.

National Study of College Student Bystander Behavior: Implications for Practice
Michael C Eberhard - California Polytechnic State University-San Luis Obispo; Kevin Grant - California Polytechnic State University-San Luis Obispo; Andres Hernandez - California Polytechnic State University-San Luis Obispo

The National College Student Bystander Intervention Study was designed to expand the application of bystander intervention theory and research to prevent and reduce harm from sexual violence, alcohol and other drug misuse, bias and exclusion, and hazing among college student populations. This session will highlight the study’s preliminary findings related to motivators and barriers to college student bystander intervention in confronting each of these social issues, and implications for practice to increase student bystander intervention-supportive attitudes, intentions, skills, and behaviors.

Exploring Multilingual Advising: Challenges and Best Practices
Cherry Lim - Bunker Hill Community College

In this interactive session, participants will walk away with an understanding of Multilingual Advising and how to incorporate this framework into their advising toolkit: knowing who your multilingual students are, creating an inclusive environment to encourage success, and understanding challenges of multilingual advising. Given the lack of research on this topic, we will also use this time to host roundtable discussions to analyze the implications of multilingual advising, explore additional areas of research, and draw commonalities across institutions.
1:15PM-2:15PM
Identity Interconnections: Facilitating Empathy and Connectivity Across/ Between Identity Experiences

Lisa A Combs - The Ohio State University; Aerial A Ashlee - St. Cloud State University; Antonio Duran - Auburn University; Kyle C Ashlee - University of North Carolina Wilmington; Kelli Campa - William Paterson University; Genia Bestencourt - University of Southern California; Windi N Sasaki - University of California-San Diego; Kaity Prieto - The Ohio State University; Avery B Olson - California State University-Long Beach; Rebecca Cepeda - The Ohio State University

Drawing parallels between identity experiences to make meaning and facilitate learning is a common occurrence in higher education. However, this approach has not been explicitly examined as a social justice and student development practice. In this interactive session, a diverse panel of student affairs scholar-practitioners discuss identity interconnections as a practical tool to foster identity exploration and allyship by opening up possibilities for connection, empathy, and greater understanding between themselves, colleagues, and college students.

MEETINGS & EVENTS  all times listed in ET

12:00PM-1:00PM
CSI Roundtable Discussion: Leadership

So much of our work is rooted in helping students build leadership capacities - inclusion and justice, collaboration, citizenship - the list goes on. Regardless of your functional area, we hope you see yourself as a leadership educator in higher education. Join your fellow leadership educators to learn about the latest research, problem solve, and network.

2:00PM-3:30PM

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #7

DIY: Academic Accountability Groups for Athletes and Non-Athletes

Kara Uhrich - Lehigh University; Katie Guynn - Lehigh University

Want a low-cost, effective way to scale academic coaching services? Our academic support programs focus on students learning from peers by reflecting on shared experiences around successes, failures, and habits. Students engage in conversations surrounding goal setting, peer accountability, learning, and study skills. This presentation provides strategies and models to replicate on your campus centered on research, assessment data, and serving diverse populations. Understanding these programs can provide solutions for teaching students how to take ownership of their academic experience.

JotX/a/o Caucus: Embracing Jotería in Higher Education & Student Affairs

Gabriel Rodriguez Lemus - University of Texas at Austin

The future of higher education must include the embrace, celebration, and practice of Jotería Studies. Jotería seeks to center the experiences and ways of being/knowing of Queer LatinX/a/o people that originated from the community itself. This is a call to be in comunidad/community with other JotX/a/o educators. The goal is to come together, build community, and to forge a committed path to the use Jotería Studies as a framework in higher education & student affairs.

“Be Professional”: Wisdom, or Weapon? Inclusion-Minded Advice Giving

Kristin Austin - West Chester University

For marginalized identities, the advice, “Be professional” can be weapon or wisdom and has often synonymously meant, “Be white.” Although supervisors share this advice intending to be helpful, the impact can be opposite. This workshop challenges leaders to examine what they are saying, versus what is being heard, when offering “professionalism” advice. Strategies to guide supervisors in coaching those they lead toward being the best representation of themselves, without an underlying threat of “White is right” ideology, will be offered.

This Campus Wasn’t Built for Me and My Child

Nicole Lynn Lewis - Generation Hope

More than 4.8 million college students are raising children in the U.S. today, but this population is largely unrecognized by higher ed administrators, underrepresented in the spaces that impact them the most, and under-supported by policymakers. During this session, participants will learn about the student parent population including challenges overcome by this demographic and engage in an experience that brings the student parent journey to life. Participants will leave with resources to support student parents in their postsecondary completion journey.

Research-in-Process Session

Insights on Admissions and Orientation Practices in Higher Education

Katie K Koo - Texas A&M University-Commerce

Graduate students can experience similar fears and anxieties to undergraduates during new university transitions (Poock, 2002). An orientation program can help to alleviate this anxiety (Hullinger & Hogan, 2014). However, the customary practices of graduate orientation programming are not well documented. This scholarship session shares the results of a national survey on graduate institutions’ efforts to orient their incoming students, using a research-based framework of desired outcomes.

Predatory Intersectionality: Evaluating Morality of American Higher Education Admissions Practices

Katie L Bennett - University of Pittsburgh

This paper utilizes moral philosophy to critique admissions practices at for-profit and not-for-profit institutions. Ethic of Care, Kant’s Categorical Imperative, Rawls’s Principles of Justice, and Herrenvolk Ethics serve as the lens to uncover how exclusionary admissions policies at not-for-profit colleges may enable for-profit organizations to predatorily target students with intersecting minoritized identities, thereby securing desirable federal financial aid dollars. An ethical revolution that encourages just policies and supports diverse students throughout admissions processes is recommended.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #8

3:45PM-4:45PM

(Re)Imagining Support for Graduate Scholars of Color to THRIVE
Rachel Camacho - Claremont Graduate University; Ariel Carpenter - Claremont Graduate University; Heather Case - Claremont Graduate University

Fostering an inclusive academic and co-curricular experience is an essential component to the retention, persistence and completion for graduate scholars of color. Re-shaping support during a pandemic, amidst a climate of racial and economic injustice, requires advancing equity practices, and a commitment to anti-racist programming that ensures success for Black, Latinx, Asian, Pacific Islanders and Indigenous American students. This session will unpack the development, deployment and lessons learned.

An Institutional Transformation Approach to Recruiting Racially Minoritized Faculty
Milagros Castillo-Montoya - University of Connecticut; Ashley N Robinson - University of Connecticut; Luz N Burgos-Lopez - University of Connecticut; Jillian Ives - University of Connecticut; Truth Hunter - University of Connecticut

In this session, we will provide a race-conscious and institutional transformation framing, based on a larger systematic literature review of over 100 articles, for thinking about the recruitment process of racially minoritized faculty and point out where institutions tend to drop the ball in their recruitment efforts. Participants will critically reflect on their current recruitment process with insights provided from our presentation through a case-study approach towards improving recruitment for racially minoritized faculty. Session is ideal for academic administrators.

Concealed Similarities: Creating Equitable Practices for Rural & Urban Students
Jenay Willis - University of Pittsburgh; Elise J Cain - Georgia Southern University

Geographic location has an impact on students’ access to higher education. The disparities faced in rural areas are similar to those impacting urban spaces. While disparities exist across the respective locales it is vital to disrupt the deficit mindset along with the monolithic narrative of both rural and urban spaces. In this session, presenters will highlight the educational opportunities made accessible to rural students as well as acknowledge the differences between the rural and urban binary.

Building and Sustaining Relationships between Universities and Indigenous Nations
Laura Forsythe - University of Manitoba; Kara Strass - Miami University

Join our kitchen table talk where we will answer your questions about building and sustaining relationships between Universities and Indigenous Nations. Why should you have a relationship with an Indigenous Nation? How do you build new relationships? How do you strengthen existing relationships? How do you build the trust that is essential to making these relationships successful? Learn from our experiences supporting relationships between Indigenous Nations and Universities, both in the United States and Canada.

Gabriel Rodriguez Lemus - University of Texas at Austin; Rodrigo Aguayo - University of Texas at Austin; Christopher Vincent Estrella-Ramirez - University of Texas at Austin; Celine Norman - University of Texas at Austin; Lesley Rivas - University of Texas at Austin

Service-learning continues to be an avenue for empowering students as citizens, scholars, and social change agents. IMPACT is a service-learning course offered by the University of Texas at Austin in collaboration with Project MALES. The course engages Latinx/a/o undergraduate students on the academic and social challenges that young boys and men of color face in the educational system. This session focuses on how service-learning can be used to impact the educational outcomes of Latinx/a/o undergraduate students.

Leveraging the Alumni Voice to Improve Leadership Programming
John Egan - Georgia Southern University; Juliann Sergi McBrayer - Georgia Southern University; Steven Tolman - Georgia Southern University; Pamela Wells - Georgia Southern University

In this presentation, we will briefly review findings from our primary research that explored alumni transferring their leadership learning into the workplace from an undergraduate leadership program. We will examine these findings together through reflection, and we will review relevant literature to generate new insights for leadership programs. Finally, this session will explore one alumni’s call to move beyond a “here and there” infusion of diversity and inclusion.

Starting in 2015, the divisive political context made campus climates increasingly tense for minoritized students (APA, 2017; Gonzalez et al., 2018). This paper explores how 24 student leaders with one or more minoritized identities engaged in campus political discourses through their student leadership roles. This qualitative study follows constructivist grounded theory and findings represent a new conceptual taxonomy for how student leaders with minoritized identities contended with the current political context and re-made sense of their identities.

There has been a pronounced increase in the number of non-Black or non-African American students attending historically Black colleges and universities (Allen, 2016; Closson & Henry, 2008). The purpose of this research was to examine the type of environments that HBCUs create for non-Black students. It further explores the experiences of non-Black students in Black spaces such as HBCUs and the impact such environments have on their racial identity development.

3:45PM-4:45PM  How Identities and Experiences Should Shape Institutional Policy and Practice  Sonja Ardoin - Appalachian State University; Keon M McGuire - Arizona State University; Tricia R Shalka - University of Rochester; Claudia Garcia-Louis - University of Texas-San Antonio; D Chase J Catalano - Virginia Tech

Higher education holds enormous potential to improve students’ lives, promote workforce participation, disrupt cycles of incarceration, and strengthen communities. However, there seems to be a disconnect between the potential of student affairs and ending mass incarceration. This session will discuss the potential intersections of student affairs and the criminal justice system, provide recommendations for supporting this often-forgotten student population, create tools for reducing stigma, and recommend best practices for instilling equity into relationships with justice-involved youth, adults, and their communities.

The presenter will share findings & takeaways from implementing a socioemotional skills-based program for undergraduates. We will discuss ways to help students navigate typical and nontraditional stressors in college.

Assessing the effect of college experiences on student outcomes is challenging. Researchers and practitioners typically rely on group-level analyses to understand whether students learned from an experience. Such analyses can only tell us what students, on average, gain from an experience. Examining individual-level changes could provide a more nuanced understanding of learning and development in college. In this session, we introduce a way to identify whether an individual-level change is meaningful and discuss applications to research, assessment, and practice.

Do you work with or advise graduate level or professional students? Come network with others who do as well!

7:00PM-8:00PM  APAN Block Social
Join APAN and the other CMA networks for some fun and virtual games! This will be another opportunity to chat with the APAN community, build connections with other APIDA individuals and CMA networks, and learn more about the APIDA community.

7:00PM-8:00PM  Block Social: CWI Women of Color Social Please join the Coalition for Women’s Identities at our Women of Color social.

7:00PM-8:00PM  Block Social: Coalition for (Dis)Ability
Come join the Coalition for (Dis)Ability for a bit of fun and festivity as we connect with each other, share our experiences, and build community together! During this time, we encourage all attendees to come in and out of the spaces designated for the Coalition and Networks Block Social, to support building our community across identities and experiences!

7:00PM-8:00PM  Coalition for Sexuality and Gender Identities (CSGI) Socials (Block Social)
As part of the Coalition’s Block Socials, the Coalition for Sexuality and Gender Identities (CSGI) will be hosting the following identity socials:

7:00PM-8:00PM  Coalition on Men and Masculinities Social
Join the Coalition on Men and Masculinities (CMM) for their social gathering.

7:00PM-8:00PM  ISAN & NAIC Block Social
This is a social for the Indigenous Student Affairs Network (ISAN) and Native, Aboriginal, and Indigenous Coalition (NAIC) in conjunction with the ACPA Coalitions + Networks.

7:00PM-8:00PM  Latinx Network Block Social
This event is in partnership with the ACPA Coalitions and Networks. It is an annual event where Latinx professionals can connected both socially and professionally with other higher education practitioners.
7:00PM-8:00PM  Multiracial Network Block Social
Multiracial Network Block Social is a great opportunity to meet the leadership team, learn more about MRN, and ways to get involved.

7:00PM-8:00PM  PAN Fahari (Block Social)
During this block social, members from various entity groups are invited to connect and build community with one another. Specifically in the PAN space, we will offer some social programming that will celebrate individual and community success over the last year. We will also use this time to share any announcements about upcoming opportunities to remain connected or to get involved with PAN in the next convention planning year.

8:00PM-9:00PM  PAN Recognizes: Giving Them Their Flowers Now
This interact program will focus on helping members develop a culture of affirmation and recognition. During the event, we will announce award recipients from our two awards processes, and then have space for meeting attendees to acknowledge those who have been integral to their personal and professional successes.

EDUCATIONAL SESSION BLOCK #9

2:30PM-3:30PM  Another No? Navigating Rejection as a Graduate Student of Color
Quortne R Hutchings - Loyola University-Chicago; Lisa A Combs - The Ohio State University

The purpose of this session is to create a healing space and a community in which graduate students of color will leave with tangible tools on navigating rejection within higher education and academia. The presenters will go over imposter syndrome, personal experiences with rejection, relevant literature related to graduate students of color, and a worksheet with resources to navigate rejection.

2:30PM-3:30PM  Challenging Race-Evasiveness in LGBTQ+ Research: Implications for Student Affairs Practitioners
Alex C Lange - University of Iowa; Antonio Duran - Auburn University

Using data from a content analysis study interrogating race-attentiveness in LGBTQ+ higher education research, this presentation engages professionals with findings exposing the race-evasiveness that undergirds this scholarship. Attendees will learn the major findings from the study, highlighting how the centrality of racism is largely ignored throughout study designs and in the interpretation of participants’ stories. Presenters will then engage attendees in small and large group discussions to consider how race-evasiveness may occur in practice when serving LGBTQ+ students.

2:30PM-3:30PM  Research-in-Process Session
Research Exposing Racism and Anti-Blackness in the Time of COVID-19
Ryan Gildersleeve - University of Denver

2:30PM-3:30PM  Exploring experiences of racism among international students during COVID-19
Katie K Koo - Texas A&M University-Commerce; Hee Jung Gong - University of Georgia

Using neo-racism (Lee & Rice, 2007) as a theoretical framework, this study explored international students’ experiences and perceptions of racism and racial discrimination during COVID-19 in the United States. By conducting three virtual focus group interviews with 18 international students in total, three key themes with sub-sections regarding international students’ challenges and perceived racism during the COVID-19 were identified: perceptions of racism-explicit racism and fear of racism; feeling of unwelcome and unsafe; and two faces of quarantine- relief but isolation.

2:30PM-3:30PM  Finding Our Voice: Combating Anti-Blackness and COVID-19 in Higher Education.
Saran Stewart - University of Connecticut

How are emerging professionals responding to learning about racial justice and decolonization as part of their professional preparation? In this study, we consider these issues as we analyze reflective journal entries by 6 masters-level graduate students across three core program courses driven by critical and inclusive pedagogy. Our findings provide insights on how emerging professionals are finding their voice amidst dual pandemics and how critical and inclusive pedagogy supports their development as anti-racist and equity-minded practitioners.
2:30PM-3:30PM: Engaging Students’ Expertise: Using Restorative Practices in Decision Making
Jacob A Garner - University of Maryland-Baltimore County; Tyler Fultz - University of Maryland-Baltimore County

The Curricular Approach to Residential Education ensures a strategic focus on learning as an outcome of the residential experience. However, a curricular model may fail to comprehend and engage the expertise of students and student staff members. At UMBC, Restorative Practices underpins the residential curriculum through a commitment to Fair Process, an aspect of Restorative Practices, for inclusive decision-making. This session will discuss Fair Process and provide examples of ways to utilize Fair Process when making decisions that impact students.

2:30PM-3:30PM: In Pursuit of a Leadership Identity: Exploring Involvement & Multiraciality
Alicia K Stites - University of Texas-Austin; Mohammad-Mehdi A Khan - University of Houston - Clear Lake; Shannon Dean-Scott, PhD - Texas State University

With the increasingly diverse presence of multiracial students at post-secondary institutions across the U.S., professionals must advance the conversation on multiracial student support. Limited research has evaluated the role of leadership and involvement frameworks in multiracial student identity development. Existing research focuses heavily on multiracial categorization as one large conglomerate, without consideration of the diverse array of identities represented. In this session, presenters will share best practices for building leadership capacity in multiracial student based on a qualitative study.

2:30PM-3:30PM: Rebuilding the Bridge Program: Reimagining Summer Transition Programs
Karla E Cruze-Silva - University of Arizona; W. Patrick Bryan - University of Arizona; Jacob Shirley - University of Arizona

New Start is a 6-week summer bridge program designed to help first-year students succeed in the transition university life. New Start primarily serves first generation, low-income, and students of color from Arizona. Due to COVID-19, New Start was held virtually for the first time. Staff will discuss the history, ways to support students virtually, lessons learned, and how summer 2020 fundamentally changed the way we think and will move forward.

2:30PM-3:30PM: Mobilizing Conservative Christian Students in Racial Justice Discourse and Action
Zach Baldwin - Intervarsity Christian Fellowship; Edden Agonafer - University of Southern California; Broderick Leaks - University of Southern California; Jeff Liou - InterVarsity Christian Fellowship USA

Evangelical students can be reluctant, if not opposed, to engage issues of racial justice, with political and religious affiliations both playing a role in their posture towards conversations on systemic racism. However, these students’ religious worldviews can offer an “on-ramp” into racial justice work. Student development professionals, chaplains, and campus ministries can work together to offer religious frameworks to move these students from complicity to allyship. This session will explore frameworks for engaging evangelical students in anti-racist work.

2:30PM-3:30PM: New High-Impact Practices that Center Students with Minoritized Identities
Maximilian T Schuster - University of Pittsburgh

As third-wave perspectives of student learning and development continue to emerge, it becomes clearer that high-impact educational practices largely benefit students with dominant identities and that students with minoritized identities have different needs. In an effort to continue move practice toward justice, broadening perspectives of high-impact practices are needed. This presentation reviews original qualitative research conducted by the presenter as well as emerging literature by notable scholars that detail new high-impact practices that promote success for students with minoritized identities.

Mary Whitehead - University of Nevada Las Vegas

Historically, Black women have found ways to address, survive, and dismantle oppressive institutions that seek to erase them. In this workshop, Dr. Whitehead will discuss her research aimed to unearth new knowledge about the historical and current impact of membership in a NPHC sorority has on the lived experiences of Black women administrators in higher education when navigating these very institutions. These relationships have had a significant impact on mobility of Black women in higher education.

But multiple forms of professional distress are born from the environments we work in: doing more with less, serving the institution over students, and contradicting our own professional identities. This kind of exhaustion and stress results in moral injury, not burnout, and needs a separate response. Therefore, their perspectives and experiences with this medium potentially reflect a common experience with social media among Black students. This qualitative study explored this phenomenon to describe the experiences of BGLO members with social media. The findings suggest that BGLO members use social media to consume culture and find sense of connectedness. Implications for practice are provided about BGLO members in the context of a PWI.</td>

<td>Framing Conversations within Critical Race Theory: A Strategy for Educators</td>
<td>Elise J Cain - Georgia Southern University; Tyler Cooper - Georgia Southern</td>
<td>Due to recent events and the current socio-political environment, it is imperative that student affairs professionals have critical conversations with students about race and racism. During this presentation, participants will learn about Critical Race Theory and its central tenets. Since applying theory to practice is key to best practices, a strategy for utilizing Critical Race Theory as a framework for conversations will be shared. Participants, therefore, will become better equipped to have these critical conversations by attending this session.</td>

Gendered Transitions: Understanding and Supporting Second-Generation Immigrant College Seniors
Tharuna Kalaivanan - George Mason University; Lily Krietzberg - George Mason University; Blake Silver - George Mason University

This interactive session will focus on understanding and supporting second-generation immigrant (SGI) college seniors in their final year of undergraduate study. Presenters will share the findings of recent research on the senior-year transition for SGI college students, with a focus on how the social construction of gender shapes their experiences and planning process. By discussing findings from a thematic analysis of 40 in-depth interviews, higher education professionals will have the opportunity to provide informed resources and support to SGI students.

Honoring the “Face Behind the Mask”: Interrogating Masculine Performatives
Keenan Y Colquitt - Northern Michigan University; Tracy L Davis - Western Illinois University; Vern H Klobassa - University of St. Thomas

Patriarchy and hegemonic masculinity negatively affect all. One result is men’s submersion of authentic inclinations to perform socially-constructed and rewarded “mask of masculinities”. Subverting that mask can create space between self and system where dogmatic standards can be (re)examined toward authentic authorship. This session addresses how faculty and administrators can create environments where men come to understand the negative consequences of hegemony and become comfortable enacting authentic masculine identities; removing the mask and unclasping dominant gender discourse.

The Pedagogy of the Student Affairs Professional Faculty Member
Laila I McCloud - Western Illinois University; Amber Manning-Ouellette - Oklahoma State University-Stillwater; Dena R Kiess - University of West Georgia; Ann M Gansemier-Topf - Iowa State University; Blanca Vega - Montclair State University

Student affairs graduate preparation program faculty play a critical role in the socialization of higher education professionals. Through their pedagogical styles and curriculum decisions, faculty help students develop their understanding of higher education and student affairs (HESA) as a field of study and practice. The panel-style session will address how faculty with practitioner backgrounds navigate their identity and its relationship to course curriculum design, teaching, course projects, student learning, identity politics, and power dynamics within the graduate preparation programs.

Research-in-Process
The Intersections between Rurality, Social Class, and Race within Higher Education
Cindy Kilgo - Indiana University-Bloomington

White women’s meaning making of social class within higher education
Moira Ozias - Grand Valley State University; Genia Besttencourt - University of Southern California

We examine how white cisgender women make meaning of their social class within higher education using critical constructivist narrative inquiry. The concept of whiteness as property (Harris, 1993) emerges to help us understand how white women across social class locations benefit from and invest in whiteness. When combined with the RMMDI, we posit that white women who have less developed meaning-making capacities are more likely to re/produce oppression than those with strongly developed internal formulas.

Rural Men of Color Identifying Institutional Needs: A Qualitative Study
Maritza E Salazar - Maritza Salazar; Adrian Huerta - University of Southern California; Jude Paul Dizon - University of Southern California

This presentation contributes to the research on men of color student development by discussing campus racial dynamics in a rural context. The presenters will share qualitative data drawn from interviews with 25 men of color at a rural university. While their needs for peer support and developmental opportunities are not novel, the rural context poses restrictions on how student affairs educators might support this population. We provide research-based recommendations practitioners can apply to ensure equity and inclusion in rural contexts.

Commission for Academic Support in Higher Education

Our Mission - To provide outreach, professional development, advocacy, and networking opportunities for student and academic affairs professionals interested in learning about and enhancing all aspects of academic support. We conceptualize academic support to include academic advising; student academic transitions; academic preparedness; and developmental education among other forms of support.

Commission for Administrative Leadership

The Commission for Administrative Leadership serves as the resource for senior level student affairs professionals and those who aspire to one day serve in such a role. The concept of leadership spans all functional areas, settings, and identities. As such, the Commission for Administrative Leadership creates an engaged and supportive community of senior level student affairs and higher education professionals committed to providing bold, transformative leadership for our association and profession.

Commission for Admissions, Orientation, & First-Year Experience

The ACPA Commission for Admissions, Orientation, and First-Year Experience (AOFYE) provides superior resources for scholarship, recognition, and networking for all association members whose work is engaged in the management of student enrollment and adjustment. AOFYE is able to do this through its network of professionals whose expertise and understanding that college and university transition programs function best as integrated, intentionally-connected, and comprehensive processes.

Commission for Global Dimensions of Student Development

Celebrating its 60th anniversary in 2021, the Commission for the Global Dimensions of Student Development (CGDSD) is one of ACPA’s oldest and most vital entity groups. CGDSD brings together ACPA members from all functional areas interested in cross-cultural learning, development of intercultural competencies, internationalization, and student services around the world. CGDSD creates space for and initiates international and cross-cultural dialogue and collaboration among higher and tertiary education professionals and encourages its members to become engaged global citizens.

Commission for Graduate and Professional Student Affairs

The Commission for Graduate and Professional Student Affairs focuses on the unique developmental and environmental challenges faced by graduate and professional school students and those who work with them. The Commission expands the scholarly and applied knowledge base through the generation and sharing of research, services and programs that foster graduate student learning and enhance the graduate student experience. The Commission provides support and networking opportunities for members who share similar interests, and advocates for increased awareness of graduate and professional student services throughout ACPA and other higher education communities.

Commission for Housing and Residential Life

For nearly six decades, the Commission for Housing and Residential Life has been one of numerous and outstanding contributions to ACPA, to the residence life profession, and to thousands of students who have lived, studied, and matured in our halls.

Commission for Social Justice Education

The Commission for Social Justice Education provides a collaborative home for student affairs professionals who are dedicated to social justice education. Come stop by our virtual table to meet current members, learn about our commission, and learn about how to get involved.

Commission for Student Conduct and Legal Issues

The Commission for Student Conduct and Legal Issues (CSCLI) offers resources and opportunities, including collaboration, in conduct and legal issue education in an effort to support the development of socially just conflict resolution strategies that effectively resolve individual and group differences.

Commission for Student Involvement

The Commission for Student Involvement enhances the knowledge and practice of educators working or interested in the areas of Fraternity and Sorority Life, Leadership Development, Student Organizations and Activities, and Community Service and Service-Learning by providing access to networking, recognition and professional development opportunities.
Commission for Two Year Colleges

The Commission for Two-Year Colleges is directly concerned with issues relevant to student development programs at two-year institutions. It is designed to promote the improvement of student development programs; enhance the professional development of student development personnel; and serve as an advocate for student development programs at two-year institutions.

Off Campus Partners
PO Box 5664 | Charlottesville, VA 22905 USA

For over 17 years Off Campus Partners has been working with universities, property managers, and students to simplify the off-campus housing process. OCP provides outsourced software solutions that enable universities to provide service to their off-campus populations while generating revenue for the institution. We supply the software, support and off-campus housing listings to embed in the university website: the university promotes the service to off-campus students, parents, and faculty/staff. Along with property listings, our service also includes a roommate search tool as well as educational components designed to help students become good citizens of their local community. In June of 2019 Off Campus Partners became part of CoStar Group, the leading global provider of commercial real estate information, analytics, and online marketplaces including Apartments.com. By combining Off Campus Partners’ experience serving universities and students with CoStar’s innovative technology and reach, we are able to provide the best search experience for university renters.

Recreation, Athletics, & Wellness Commission

ACPA’s Commission for Recreation, Athletics, and Wellness (RAWC) will provide ACPA members with opportunities for professional development about issues of importance in campus recreational sports, intercollegiate (varsity) athletics and wellness in postsecondary education. In addition, acting within the ACPA governance structure and with ACPA International Office, RAWC will assist in positioning ACPA to be an informed voice on campus recreation, athletics, and wellness issues as those issues intersect with student affairs and with the strategic objectives of ACPA as an association.

Leading with a Racial & Social Justice Lens Institute for Senior Level Campus Leaders™
SUMMER 2021 // VIRTUAL

Increased activism, student demands for more inclusive environments and systemic structures of oppression require 21st century university Senior Student Affairs Officers to be more emotionally intelligent and responsive to emergent campus issues. The times demand courageous leaders. Join other senior leaders engaged in this important work to build your capacity so that you can comfortably engage racial justice and decolonization, confident in your knowing and competent in your engagement, and ready to continue leading your campus, staff, and students through these challenging times.

Institute on the Curricular Approach™
10-13 OCTOBER 2021 // CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

The ACPA Institute on the Curricular Approach (ICA) has been widely adopted as the go-to professional development experience for individuals and departmental teams who want to implement a Curricular Approach on campus.

This learning experience is dynamic and valuable, as you will have access to concrete examples of how institutions with similar institutional values have developed and implemented their Curricular Approach. This event is a straightforward way to obtain clear direction from higher education and student affairs professionals who have done the work.

Student Affairs Assessment Institute
8, 15 & 22 JUNE 2021 // VIRTUAL

The 2021 ACPA Assessment Institute will provide a guided, curricular experience where participants can develop essential assessment knowledge and skills for their professional toolkit.

ACPA22 Annual Convention
6-9 MARCH 2022 // ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

Join us in St. Louis, Missouri as we convene together for the first time since ACPA20 in Nashville, connect with each other on personal and professional levels, and cultivate a unique educational and social experience.

Registration for ACPA22 will be available at the conclusion of ACPA21. Visit convention.myacpa.org for more information!

Phyllis L. Mable Emerging Leaders Institute
SUMMER 2021 // VIRTUAL

Approximately 30% of ACPA members currently identify as entry-level professionals with 1-3 years of experience in student affairs work. ACPA created the Phyllis L. Mable Emerging Leaders Institute to support the development of emerging leaders as they collectively serve thousands of students on a daily basis. This Institute includes several mentoring opportunities and one-on-one interactions with several of today’s leaders in higher education and student affairs as resident faculty and small group facilitators.

ACPA22 Annual Convention
6-9 MARCH 2022 // ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

Join us in St. Louis, Missouri as we convene together for the first time since ACPA20 in Nashville, connect with each other on personal and professional levels, and cultivate a unique educational and social experience.

Registration for ACPA22 will be available at the conclusion of ACPA21. Visit convention.myacpa.org for more information!

Additional events will be added throughout the year! Be sure to regularly check myacpa.org/events for the new and exciting opportunities.
